35th Pa. All-American Dairy Show A Celebration

VERNON ACHENBACH JR.
Lancaster Farming Staff

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — This is the 35th year for the Pennsylvania All-American Dairy Show at the state Farm Show Complex in Harrisburg and organizers have announced that it has grown into a world-class event.

The All-American Dairy Show really is for all dairy enthusiasts, not just those who show animals or breed for type.

The PAADS technically is from Sept. 20-24, but in reality, it started Friday with animals arriving from all over the United States and Canada, and continues today with the state dairy princess competition and coronation at the Sheraton Harrisburg East.

Sunday, Sept. 20 is officially the first day, and starts at noon with an opening ceremony and ribbon-cutting ceremony in the Dairy Activity Center, located in the Farm Show Complex's Northeast Building, adjacent to the Large Arena.

The ceremony will feature the fact that PAADS is serving as host to its first dairy antiques and collectibles show, with collectors from Maryland, New York, North Carolina and Pennsylvania having committed early to displaying their items, and others expected from other states.

Items to be displayed include seldom-seen equipment used in the late 1880s and early 1900s, such as gravity and mechanical cream separators, butter churns, butter workers, paddles, bowls, molds and prints, cheese making utensils, ice cream freezers, etc.

One of the most rare items is to be a foot-powered milking machine on loan from the Penn State University Pasto Agricultural Museum.

Many items will continue to be displayed through the week.

Youth Competitions

At 1 p.m. Sunday, the youth showmanship contest is to be held in the Large Arena, which is to have been especially decorated for the 35th anniversary.

The showmanship contest is in its second year and is competitive. Youth don't have to own an animal or have one registered in any of the shows to compete. The contest allows the loan of animals for those willing to test their showmanship skills.

The showmanship contest is a two-phase competition.

Phase II of the showmanship competition pits the top 10 in the senior-age division in a fit-out contest. A $500 savings bond and a set of clippers goes to the top finalist, but all of the top 10 receive a monetary award.

The second phase starts at 5 p.m. in the Small Arena of the Complex, that also boasts a new coat of paint and some other new decorations.

Another competition is the Invitational Youth Dairy Cattle Judging Contest, opened to 4-H, FFA and collegiate judging teams from

USDA-EPA Draft More Regs

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — The U.S. Department of Agriculture and the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency were to have officially released Friday a draft package of regulations directed at controlling all livestock operations in the United States.

This new proposal is officially called the draft USDA-EPA Unified National Strategy for Animal Feeding Operations (AFOs). It was to have been published in the Sept. 18 issue of the Federal Register.

Not to be confused with EPA's already released Concentrated Animal Feeding Operation (CAFO) strategy — targeted at controlling nutrients on high density livestock operations — this new strategy is directed at all livestock operations.

A satellite transmission from USDA of an overview of what is in the strategy was set for Friday afternoon.

This issue is considered important enough for all livestock farmers to understand and provide comment to USDA.

Look for a report in next week's Lancaster Farming.

$30,000 In Hand To Kick Off Lancaster Farmland Trust Drive

EVERETT NEWSWANGER
Managing Editor

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — At the kick-off breakfast of the Lancaster Farmland Trust Harvest Appeal fund raising campaign, Tom Stouffer, executive director said the $200,000 goal is significant because of the leverage these funds give to secure additional matching funds. Stouffer expressed belief the Trust can turn the campaign funds into $1 million.

"Farmland preservation is not only about preserving farms but also preserving farmers," Stouffer said. "Since we are asking those who preserve their farms to make a perpetual commitment to farming must give them the assurance that future generations can find farming profitable into the long future.

John Schwartz, Lancaster County agent and board chairman, said membership has increased to 1,500 members and agreed that preserv-

Movement of ready-to-cook whole birds remained fairly good; however, inquiry for additional product had slowed significantly at some points. In the parts complex, wings were short of a good demand. Breast items were irregularly available. Leg quarters were in heavy supply and were slow in clearing.

USDA-MO Dept Ag Market News

DAILY NATIONAL GRAIN SUMMARY

Grain and soybean bids finished mostly lower, today, due to trade corrections and light export demand. Wheat steady to 4 cents lower except Portland 2 to 3 cents higher. Corn 1 to 5 cent lower. Sorghum 2 to 3 cents lower. Soybeans 4 to 18 cents lower. Wheat bids were mostly lower after two days of higher trends. Small overnight export sales limited declines. Corn and soybean bids fell due to lack of foreign demand and active harvest. Increased movement of old crops stocks and limited US crusher demand added to weakness.

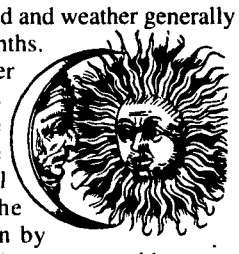
The OLD FARMER'S THIS WEEK WITH ALMANAC

SEPTEMBER 21-27, 1998

ROSH HASHANAH, SEPT. 21.

AUTUMNAL EQUINOX

September 23 at 1 37 A M , Eastern Daylight Time, marks this year's passing of summer into fall. It's said that as the wind and weather are at the time of the equinoxes, so will be the wind and weather generally during the following three months.



If the autumn is warm, the winter is reputed to be long If there's much autumn fog, there will be much winter snow If the autumn is clear, the winter will be windy If the leaves on the desiduous trees have not fallen by St Martin's Day (November 11), expect a cold winter If the storms of September clear off warm, however, you can expect the winter storms to be relatively warm, as well

The autumn night is changeable. - Norwegian proverb

TIP OF THE WEEK

☞ Instead of leaf bags or garbage cans, use a large, discarded sheet or tarp to gather up leaves.

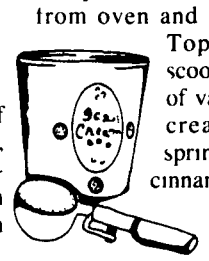
BAKED APPLES & CHUTNEY

6 'Granny Smith' or other tart baking apples
3/4 cup mango (or other) chutney
1 pint good-quality vanilla ice cream
cinnamon, to taste

Preheat oven to 400° F Rinse, core, and cut off the tops of the apples, but leave a bit of the bottom core intact to seal in the chutney Fill each apple with chutney Place into a baking pan with ½ inch of water Bake about 45 minutes, until apples are just soft. Remove from oven and let cool Top with a scoop or two of vanilla ice cream and sprinkle with cinnamon



Makes 6 servings.

The OLD FARMER'S WEATHER PROVERBS

When the fog falls, fair weather follows. When it rises, rain follows.

If migratory birds leave early, expect a hard winter.

When fish jump up after flies, expect rain.

A serene autumn denotes a windy winter.

OPINION

Dairy History And Current Events All In One Place

The All-American Dairy Show is scheduled for this week from Sunday, September 20 to Thursday, September 24. Actually, the event starts Saturday night, September 19 with the dairy princess gala that crowns the new state-wide representative of the dairy industry.

This 35th anniversary of the state's premier dairy show will not only feature some of the best dairy animals in the nation, the added events this year will increase the reasons to visit the show.

First, a new idea involving old dairy items will be featured this year. Dairy antiques and collectibles from a by-gone dairy farm era will be exhibited to show how cows were milked, how milk was handled, how cream was separated, and how butter, cheese and ice cream were made on farms in the late 1800s and early 1900s. Collectors from Pennsylvania, Maryland, New York, and North Carolina have agreed to bring exhibitions.

Second, the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture will be hosting a seminar focusing on the mechanics of how to market livestock internationally. If you are looking to sell animals internationally or want to find new ways to increase farm income and exposure, this will be an educational opportunity ill not want to miss.

Of course, the main course of the event will be the showing of six national dairy breeds, youth shows and contests, and will climax with the picking of a supreme champion on Thursday afternoon. Often in the past, the number of ringside spectators for these major dairy shows has been less than these shows merit.

We believe this will change for the 1998 show. With all the efforts to increase the interest in the event, many more breeders and commercial dairy farmers will find a reason to go see dairy history and current events combined nicely in one place, the Farm Show building in Harrisburg. If you haven't been to the All-American in recent years, this will be the show to attend.

Now Is The Time

By John Schwartz

Lancaster County Agricultural Agent

To Remember Fly Free Date

Wheat growers for decades have been concerned with the "Fly Free Date".

According to Robert Anderson, Lancaster County Extension Agronomy Agent, the "Fly Free Date" refers to the time which the Hessian Fly, a serious pest of wheat, is no longer active. Since its introduction during the Revolutionary War, the Hessian Fly continues to pose a threat to the wheat crop.

The fly has two generations per year. The second generation of the fly emerges in late summer and early fall. It then lays its eggs on small wheat plants that have emerged.

When the eggs hatch the maggot begins feeding on the plant It then passes the winter as a pupa In the spring an adult emerges and begins to lay eggs on the leaves of the wheat When these eggs hatch, the maggot begins to feed near the nodes of the stalk and weaking it This will cause the wheat stalk to break over before harvest

By planting wheat after the "Fly Free Date", the farmer is simply planting the crop at a time when the fall egg laying is over. The "Fly Free Date" for Lancaster County is between October 10 and 20. Wheat planted after this date has little risk of damage from the Hessian Fly.

To Lime Fields

Lime plays an important part in maintaining productive soils. According to Leon Ressler, Lancaster County Extension Agricultural Agent, lime supplies calcium and magnesium ions that are leached from the soil as a result of rainfall. Soils naturally become acidic as a result of this leaching process.

An application of lime will reverse this process and bring the soil back to a desirable pH of 6.5 to 7.0. Adding too much lime may be as harmful as too little This may raise the pH above the neutral pH of 7 0 and tie up needed plant nutrients.

The proper amount of lime to apply for your fields should be determined by soil test. Soil test kits are available from your county Penn State Cooperative Extension office for $6.00. The best time to apply lime is in the fall This gives the lime several months to react with the soil and neutralize the acidity before planting time arrives.

A single application will be effective for several years. The time elapsed until another application is required will vary depending on amount of fertilizer applied, soil type and amount of rainfall. Therefore, it is a good idea to soil test every two to three years to monitor soil pH and nutrients.

To Plan Ahead

Glenn Shirk, Lancaster County Extension Dairy Agent, reminds us as the 1998 harvest season draws to a close, take time to look ahead and make plans for the next 12 months. Take an inventory of the amount, kind and quality of feeds that you will have in storage. Compare this to what the herd will need.

If you will be needing more feed, stock up when prices are more favorable, even if you have to borrow money to take advantage of good deals. What you save in feed costs should easily pay for the interest incurred. Plus, you may be more sure of having the quality of feed you need, so that means more income and fewer vet bills. When buying feed, negotiate for favorable prices.

Be sure you are receiving the kind, quality and the amount you specified. Forage tests will help you know the quality you are buying. Also, be sure to adjust prices for variations in moisture content and feed analysis

THE BIBLE SPEAKS

BY LAWRENCE W. ALTHOUSE

"A BUNCH OF OLD LAWS!"

September 20, 1998

Background Scripture:
Deuteronomy 5.1-21
Devotional Reading:
Isaiah 49·1-6

"The problem with God," someone once told me, "is that he's forever telling us what to do – and, if something's fun, he's sure to be against it!"

I respected her honesty, even if I couldn't agree I suspect there may be some Christians who feel that way, even though they may never verbalize it. God may sometimes seem to be a divine martinet who delights in making us toe the mark. In my earliest Sunday School experience I was told that it is not for us to question God's commandments.

Nevertheless, I did question his commandments and found that their purpose was not to make life more burdensome, but just the opposite. Gradually I concluded that there is nothing God requires of us that is not for our own good "To have no other gods" before him is not for the sake of his ego, but for our own welfare Worshipping and serving a diversity of gods is not good for us, individually and corporately (Deut 5 7)

FOR OUR OWN GOOD

Furthermore, it is not because God is offended, but for our own good that he commands: "You shall not make for yourself a graven image you shall not bow down or serve them" (5:8). Graven images do not injure God, but they can do us a lot of harm When we become enamored of things we make with our own hands– material goods, technology, wealth and power– we are creating substitutes for God And when we run after substitutes for God, we are the ones who suffer the most.

What about when we "take the name of the Lord your God in vain"? (5:11). Surely that is more an affront to the Lord than it is a danger to us! But when we take God's name in vain – which includes but does not end with profanity– no matter how unconsciously and habitual that profanation may be, we weaken our own faith in God.

So it is with observing the Sabbath day and the command "to keep it holy" (5:12-15), God so commands us for our own welfare, not for his. Jesus himself affirmed this: "The Sabbath was made for man, not man for the Sabbath" (Mk. 2:27). So, too, although our parents benefit when we obey his commandment to "Honor your father and your mother," the net affect of obeying this command is to enrich ourselves as well as our parents. (5:16).

YOU SHALL NOT

Then we come to the "You shall not..." commandments. We are not to kill, commit adultery, steal, bear false witness, or covet. (5:18-20). True, the breaking of any or all of these injuries our neighbor, but we are harmed even more. Killing brings tragedy to both the person killed and the one who does the killing– even if he or she seems to get away with it. (Note: when God says "You shall not kill," he does not make any exceptions!) Adultery, whether discovered or undiscovered, adulterates (weakens, corrupts) marriage and other relationships

Stealing and bearing false witness against our neighbor hurts us as well as our neighbor Unfortunately, although most of us wouldn't think of stealing from our neighbor, we might not hesitate to bear false witness against him or her.

That brings us to one of the most difficult of commandments "Neither shall you covet..." Many of us who find we can keep the other commandments tend to overlook this one It seems such a harmless act, hardly a sin But that is only because we do not realize how destructive it can be in our lives It can be the foundation of the breaking of most of the others.

The Ten Commandments may seem like "a bunch of old laws," but, when break them, we hurt ourselves. When we live by them, we reap the blessings that God intended when he gave them to us.

QUARRYVILLE (Lancaster Co.) — Dairy shows at this week's Solanco Fair were marked with quality and youth participation.

The Solanco Fair featured four colored breed shows, held Wednesday, and a Holstein show held Thursday at the Solanco Fairgrounds in Quarryville.

The Holstein show and the Ayrshire show were the largest, and the Holstein show was not much larger than the Ayrshire.

Other breed shows include Jersey, Brown Swiss and Milking Shorthorn.

Judge for the colored breed shows was Tom Arrowsmith of Peach Bottom. Holstein judge was Rick Hess of Lampeter.

In the Ayrshire show, the grand champion was a senior 3-year-old, Dreamnol Teddy Bear Lindy, bred and owned by Craig Nolan, son of Robert and Sharon Nolan, owners of Dreamnol Farm.

The Nolans were premier breeder and exhibitor of the show.

The reserve grand champion was a 4-year-old, S&M Ayr Irs Opal, exhibited by Rebecca Nolan.

The brother and sister team won both the youth division and open division titles.

The duo also showed the junior and reserve junior champion Ayrshires. Rebecca showed the junior champion, a winter calf, Dreamnol Rigil Oleva, while Craig showed the reserve junior champion, a fall yearling, Wentworth-Farm Sweet Vidalia.

While the Nolans' animals won the championship, there were a number of exhibitors in the Ayrshire breed show.

In the Holstein show, the senior and grand champion was a 5-year-old, Welk-Shade Sterling Lizzy, bred and owned by Mark and Kristina Welk, owners of Welk-Shade Holsteins.

They were also named the premier breeder and exhibitor.

The reserve senior and reserve grand champion Holstein was a senior 3-year-old, Woodbine Jed Lucy, owned by Justin Hall. His Lucy cow was also named grand champion of the youth division.

The reserve youth division grand champion was the junior champion of the open division, a fall calf, Woodbine Starbuck Vallie, owned by Christina Knight.

Judge Hess said that while the not was not noteably big, it had "good quality and it's good to see the number of youth participating." He noted that youth exhibitors in dairy shows has dropped in many areas, but not in the Quarryville and southern Lancaster area.

The youth division show did not recognize junior champions or senior champions, just champion and reserve.

The reserve junior champion of open division was a winter calf, Woodbine Aero Elmo, bred and owned by Trisha Knight.

In the Brown Swiss breed, the senior and grand champion was a 2-year-old, BrownSwitch Con C Krystal, owned by Erica Lloyd, while the reserve senior and reserve grand champion was an aged cow, Lake Lane Pebbles, owned by Joshua Hushon.

In the Jersey breed, Erica Lloyd exhibited the senior and grand champion, a 3-year-old, ELS Brook Imperial Melissa, bred and owned by Erica.

The reserve champion Brown Swiss was also a 3-year-old, Top-O-Hill Merit Thelma, owned by Barbara Richardson.

The reserve junior champion was a winter calf, Hillacres Star-

There were two animals exhibited in the Milking Shorthorn show, both owned by James Findley.

The grand champion was a 2-year-old, Miss Kouetney's Master Kricket; the reserve grand champion was a calf, Miss Krickets Peerless Kooter.

Jersey Youth Plan Fall Activities

LIBERTY (Tioga Co.) — This fall, make plans to join newly appointed Jersey Youth Director Pat Rassau, of Butler County, at several fall events.

First, for all Junior Jersey Association members who are heading to Harrisburg for the State Junior Dairy Show, be sure to attend the annual meeting and pizza party held Sunday, Sept. 20, at 7 p.m. The meal is free for all members and will be served in a meeting room on the second floor of the main exhibition hall.

During the Junior Dairy Show on the 21st, a committee will be watching from ringside to select animals to represent Pennsylvania at the North American International Livestock Exhibition (NAILE) at Louisville, Kentucky.

If your animal is selected, you'll have the chance to pack your bags and enjoy the opportunity of a lifetime, competing with Jerseys from across North America. This year's junior show at NAILE is slated for Saturday, Nov. 7.

The trip to Louisville is funded largely through donations from businesses and individuals throughout Pennsylvania. If you would like to make a contribution, contact David Norman, PJCA secretary/treasurer, at 717-324-5631 or send one to him at RR 1, Box 30, Liberty, PA 16930.

Rassau was recently appointed to fill the position of youth director. She and her husband, Charles operate a small Jersey farm in Butler County. She and her children have been active in Jersey youth activities for several years.

Other newly elected officers of the Pennsylvania Jersey Cattle Association include: President Lori Sollenberger, Everett: Vice President Jeff Reasner, Shippensburg; Secretary-Treasurer David Norman, Liberty; Jersey Letter Editor Margot Spangenberg, Starrucca.

For more information about additional Junior Jersey activities, contact Rassau at 473 Monroe Road, Sarver, PA 16055 or call her at (724) 353-9681.

across the nation. That's scheduled to start at 8 a.m. Sept. 21.

At 7 p.m. that night, at the Sheraton Harrisburg East, a judging contest awards banquet is scheduled.

In another, very intense contest, about 100 youth have entered for Tuesday's Junior Dairy Management Competition, with a $1,000 scholarship as top prize, but competition organizers and adult observers said there are no losers in this event, since the educational value is so great. That competition begins 10 a.m., Sept. 22.

Back to Sunday, it is also time for several of the state youth dairy breed organizations to hold meetings.

The Pennsylvania Junior Guernsey Breeders are set to meet and hold a social at 6:30 p.m. in Room D; the state Ayrshire Youth are to meet and hold a social at 7 p.m. in Room E; the state Junior Jersey Club meeting is to be at 7 p.m., in Room C.

Youth interested in pursuing a career in the dairy industry can talk to representatives of the industry during the Careers and Opportunities Night event, set for 7 p.m. Sunday in the Dairy Activities Center.

Also set for Sunday evening are the Junior Dairy Show Olympics, to be held in the Small Arena.

Show officials report that registration for the six national and regional dairy breed shows is greater than in previous years, and at least as great as its peak. Two thousand head of cattle from about 20 states and Canada are expected to be on site ready to compete.

In addition, almost 1,200 head were registered to compete in six dairy breed shows Monday in the Pennsylvania Junior Dairy Show, set to start at 8 a.m. It is held in conjunction with PAADS.

The state Junior Dairy Show is the culmination of the state's FFA and 4-H dairy youth showing efforts. They had to qualify their animals for the state show by first receiving approval from a judge at a county and district show.

Some of the same animals can be expected to be shown in the national and regional shows during the rest of the week.

Those looking to purchase animals will find two exceptional sales, according to PAADS officials.

A Milking Shorthorn Sale is scheduled to be held 2 p.m. Monday, Sept. 21, in the Small Arena.

The Eastern National Holstein Sale is to be held at 7 p.m. Wednesday Sept. 23, in the Small Arena.

A bank of pay telephones in the hallway to the rear of the Small Arena is available for those who wish to consult with others about possible purchases.

Also on Wednesday, at 6 p.m., prior to the Eastern National Holstein Sale, the All-American Buffet is scheduled to be held in the Dairy Activity Center, featuring the presentation of the annual Image Award.

The PAADS Image Award is presented to a person who has done an outstanding long-time job of helping to enhance and preserve the quality of the show not only within the dairy industry, but to the general public.

This year's award winner is Elsie Wolff, a long-time show participant, class sponsor and member of the PAADS board of directors.

Wolff and her husband J. Scott own Hollow View Farm in Quarryville, hwere she tends young Guernsey stock.

According to PAADS officials, "An enthusiastic promoter and advocate for the (PAADS) show, Wolff has been diligent in recommending improvements, seeking out new exhibitors, tapping into the generosity of fellow breeders to be class sponsors, and seeking ways to enhance the show, while remaining true to the values of the show itself."

Specifically, she is recognized for being instrumental in improving lighting in the arena and wash areas, improving the sound system, and encouraging changes to draw more spectators.

Wolff isn't the only long-time exhibitor and supporter expected to be present during the week.

The event is also recognized as "the" dairy event for the state, a place for meeting family and friends, establishing new personal and business relationships, discussing issues and exchanging ideas.

Also new this year, food is to be available through several of the state's commodity organizations.

Commercial displays are also part of the PAADS, and industry support businesses are all expected to be present, from artificial insemination businesses, to high-tech breeding specialist, feeding specialist, records keeping, milk testing, etc.

On Wednesday, Sept. 23, ADM-Moormans Inc. is offering a free seminar on how to get more profit out of a dairy operation. The "Dairy Solutions" seminar is designed to help dairy producers find ways to increase profits, and how to locate profit-making aspects of a farming operation.

Right in line with that, for the first time, a livestock exporting seminar is to be offered for the first time. While dairy cattle are the main thrust of PAADS, the export seminar is to be applicable to all livestock.

A schedule of shows and sale and events is included in this issue of Lancaster Farming, as well as several more detailed articles on some of the programs.

The Farm Show Complex is located at Mclay and Cameron streets, with easy access from I81; Route 11/15; the Pennsylvania Turnpike; or Route 322.

For those familiar with road work being done just north of Harrisburg on Route 322, take note that while delays can be expected during morning and evening commuter drive hours, there is little interruption other times, though traffic can be heavy Sunday evenings traveling east into Harrisburg.

There are a number of hotel and motel accomodations in the area.

ing the farmer is part of the all-important work of the Farmland Trust. He said his grandfather's cause was to get electricity to the farmers; his father helped to get agriculture from horses to mechanization.

"Now I have come to believe our challenge in this generation is to preserve the land so farming can continue," Schwartz said. "More and more people realize our success and quality of life goes back to our farms. We are at the crossroads. It will depend how well we do our job on farmland preservation. Hopefully, we will not miss our call to insure the future of agriculture."

Darvin Boyd, honorary chair of the Trust's funding campaign announced that $30,000 had already been donated toward the $200,000 goal. "It is gratifying to know that people understand the critical need to preserve Lancaster County farms and are willing to support Lancaster Farmland Trust's important work. These donations by various key individuals and business donors will help us towards reaching our goal.

"We are all busy but we must decide what is important. This effort is truly a project that will increase the quality of life for our children. If we do not preserve Agriculture in our county we will not have the quality of life in the future.

"The idea behind the 'Harvest Appeal' is that we need to reinvest part of the harvest into the next crop. Farmland is being lost all over the country. A total of 1,000 farms have been preserved between the Farmland Trust and The Ag Preserve Board. This seems like a small number in light of the 50,00 total number of farm in the state. But we needed to start small.

"To me, Lancaster County is a national treasure. Our responsibility is to be good stewards and enhance the quality of life for future generations," Boyd said.

Officials hope to reach their funding goals by the end of 1998. Lancaster Farmland Trust has preserved 85 farms and more than 5,400 acres worth nearly $8.5 million since its organization in 1988. It is a private, non-profit organization and often works with or along side the Ag Preserve Board which is state funded.

The Lancaster Farmland Trust's annual dinner is scheduled for Friday, November 13, at Historic Strasburg Inn. Dinner is at 5:45 p.m. For more information about Lancaster Farmland Trust call (717) 293-0707 or visit their website at www.savelancasterfarms.org.

HE SPENT $16,000 FOR A "NEW" COMBINE FROM HOOBER

ADVANCED MACHINE SERVICE

"Because of Hoober's service, my used combine runs as good as new."
Dick Seidel, Kutztown

A couple of years ago, Dick Seidel found himself in need of a combine A John Deere customer, Dick figured he would spend $35-$40,000 and get a Deere 6620 But after looking around he discovered a local dealer with a used Case IH Axial-Flow combine for just over $16,000 Dick knew the combine needed work, so after harvest he decided to take his used Axial-Flow to the combine specialists at Hoober, Inc for Uptime Service. Dick went over every inch of the machine with a Hoober specialist and together they discovered the combine needed significant service and repair

Dick spent $16,000 with Hoober to get the combine fixed, but says it was money well spent. "It absolutely was worth it," says Dick "Because of Hoober, that combine runs like new It s a completely different machine In fact, the last two years, it went through both harvests without a single breakdown None No lost time at all. You can't ask for more."

As for how the Hoober-serviced Axial-Flow stacks up against John Deere, Dick says the Axial-Flow wins hands down. "It s a lot simpler," says Dick, "and I get a cleaner grain sample even though it s an older machine It just keeps going. It s amazing "

In the pen-of-two class, champion honors went to Eric Diem, Willow Hill, and was purchased by Hatfield Quality Meats for $1 a pound. Reserve champion honors went to Justin Conner, Chambersburg, purchased by Upperman's Water Treatment Service and Rotz & Stonesifer Public Accountants for $1 a pound.

In the junior fitting and showing class, Anna Kent, St. Thomas, was declared grand champion and Jonathan Wenger, Newburg, was reserve champion.

In the senior division, Justin Conner was declared grand champion and Jordon Conner, Chambersburg, was reserve champion.

The show was judged by Nelson Beam, who has a 210-sow operation in Chester County.

Roundup trophies were sponsored by York Farm Credit, ACA of Chambersburg an ribbons and rosettes were provided by the Franklin County 4-H Development Fund.

Ezra Good, left, representing Hatfield Quality Meats purchased the Franklin County 4-H grand champion market hog for $3.10 per pound, exhibited by Eric Diem.

Improving The Aerobic Stability Of Silages

LIMIN KUNG JR., Ph.D.
University of Delaware

NEWARK, Del. — Microorganisms involved in the ensiling process include beneficial bacteria (homolactic acid bacteria), detrimental bacteria (for example, clostridia) and unwanted yeasts and molds.

In a good silo, air (oxygen) is eliminated by respiration from the plant and packing, thus preventing the growth of detrimental bacteria, yeasts and molds.

A limited amount of heating during the early days of ensiling is good because it is an indication that air is being removed and that bacteria are starting to ferment the silage.

When oxygen is eliminated from the silo, production of acid and a low pH stops bacterial growth. However, low pH and acidity do not stop the growth of yeasts and molds in silage.

Heating for too long of a time is an indication that there was too much air in the silage mass and excessive heat can result in heat-damaged proteins, low energy values, and low dry matter recoveries.

Aerobic Stability

"Aerobic stability" is a term that nutritionists have used to define the length of time silage remains cool and does not spoil.

We do not understand all the factors that affect the aerobic stability of silages.

When fermentation is completed, and silage is exposed to air during feedout, heating in the silo and feed bunk is usually caused by yeasts (and to a lesser extent molds and some bacteria).

Silages with large amounts of yeasts spoil rapidly; those with low levels of yeasts remain stable.

Silages that have undergone clostridial fermentation and have high concentration of butyric acid are, ironically, very stable when exposed to air. However, clostridial silage is undersirable because loss of DM and nutrients are extremely large when this type of fermentation occurs.

Silages that have a strong vinegar smell (acetic acid) are also usually very stable because acetic acid is very toxic to yeasts.

In general, the problem of spoiling silage is worse in high moisture corn, corn silage and cereal silages than in alfalfa silage.

If heat is detected in silage months after silo filling, this is usually an indication of spoilage and reduced nutritive value. Depending on the degree of spoilage, cows may eat less feed and/or produce less milk.

Because air is the spark that lights the fire for growth of yeast, minimizing air in silage is an important goal. Harvesting forages at optimum moisture levels (not too dry), correct particle size (not too long or short), filling and sealing quickly and feeding out adequate amounts of silage from the silo each day will help to minimize silage's exposure to air.

Clean and efficient removal of silage from the face of bunkers and bag silos will also help to minimize spoilage.

Preventing Spoiling With Additives

There are many products available to producers that claim to improve silage quality.

Bacterial inoculants, based on homofermentative lactic acid bacteria, should be added to silages to improve fermentation and increase dry matter and energy recovery. However, most bacterial inoculant do little to inhibit growth of yeasts and molds.

Some inoculants contain bacteria that can make propionic acid (Propionibacteria). However, in most studies, improvement in aerobic stability has not been better.

In some recent studies, newer bacterial inoculants that produce large amounts of acetic acid have improved aerobic stability. However, these products are not currently approved for use in the U.S. and more research is needed in this area.

Enzymes are commonly found in many silage additives but they do not inhibit yeasts or molds.

There are several types of silage additives that can help to control yeasts and molds. Most of these products contain buffered propionic acid as the primary active ingredient. These preservatives also contain other antifungal compounds such as sorbic acid, benzoic acid, and acetic acid.

Buffered propionic acid-based products are generally non-corrosive and safe to handle. Unbuffered propionic acid is less expensive to use but most advise against its use because it is highly corrosive to equipment and people.

Stability Of Silages

with several of the newer buffered propionic acid products. Label recommendations range from 1- to 4-pounds per ton of forage.

As expected, our initial research suggests that higher application levels are better than lower. An optimum dose level cannot be recommended at this time because we cannot predict how many yeasts are naturally occurring on a forage in a particular field.

In addition, packing, moisture, fill rate, and feedout rate markedly affect growth of yeasts in the silo.

To date, there is insufficient data to show that any one product is consistently better than another.

A less commonly used additive to control yeasts and molds is anhydrous ammonia (5-7 Lbs./ton). The major drawback with ammonia is operator safety during application.

Ammonia is quite dangerous to work with and safety precautions should always be taken when it is used (protective eye-ware and respirator if needed). Rations with ammonia treated silage must be carefully balanced for proper amounts of rumen-degradable and -undergradable protein.

Both ammonia and propionic acid are most effective in controlling yeasts when applied at the time of ensiling.

Table 1 shows some results from tests conducted in my lab with ammonia and propionic acid based preservatives. Comparisons cannot be made between the two preservatives as each was tested separately. In addition, these numbers should not be used as absolute values for aerobic stability because they were generated under controlled laboratory conditions. What is important when viewing this data is the relative difference among treatments.

Diagnosing Problems

All fermented feeds contain some yeasts and molds. Yeasts make alcohol, so if silage smells like alcohol, many yeast are present.

Silage with over 100,000 to 1,000,000 (also denoted as 10^5 to 10^6) yeast per gram are usually very unstable and will heat quickly. This is especially true when silage is exposed to air during hot weather. Cold weather usually retards the growth of yeasts and molds so producers tend to see less of a problem with heating silages during the winter.

Silage can be sent to a laboratory for analyses of yeasts and molds. However, caution should be taken to ensure that the sample is frozen, because yeasts and molds can grow rapidly while in transit and thus give a false reading.

A question that is often asked is, when should propionic acid-type products be used?

Here are some scenarios.

As an additive used at ensiling, propionic acid can be used to treat historic problems of silages heating in the silo or bunk (oversizing, slow feedout rate, poor packing and filling).

Corn silage or high moisture corn that has been stored for prolonged periods of time (more than 6-9 months) or silage fed during hot weather are other good candidates for treatment.

Treating an entire silo or all of your silage may not be justifiable if the problem occurs for only a few weeks out of the year. However, one could rationalize against this logic because it is extremely difficult to predict in advance whethter silage will remain cool.

Silage moved from one silo structure to another and purchased silage that is moved and exposed to air for several days before feeding should be considered for treatment with buffered propionic acid. However, ammonia and bacterial inoculants should not be used to treat silages that have completed the fermentation process.

Sprayiong the face of a bunk with a propionic acid-based preservative is probably not useful because only silage on the immediate face is protected as air can penetrate deeply into the silage mass.

In an attempt to reduce costs, some suggest that only the top several loads of silage in a tower silo or bunk should be treated with a propionic acid-based product. However, this will not help to improve the aerobic stability of the remainder of the silage.

Because of their relatively high cost, preservatives designed to be added directly to the totally mixed ration (TMR) should be used only in instances where they are to be used for short periods of time.

In a heating TMR, be sure to evaluate all sources of yeasts. For example, a silage may remain cool and stable by itself, but when mixed with other feeds, the mixture may spoil rapidly. The primary source of heating may have come from the other dietary components such as other silages or high moisture corn.

If given a choice, preliminary data from our lab suggests that it is better to control yeasts at that time of ensiling rather than after the fact in a TMR.

Molds, Mycotoxins

Mycotoxins can cause major health problems for cows. Unfortunately, our understanding of their control and knowledge is very poor.

Molds produce most mycotoxins and for the most part, mycotoxins are a separate problem from spoiling feed in the bunk. The majority of mycotoxins are produced in the field while a much smaller amount may be produced in the silo. None of the additives discussed in this article are effective in reducing mycotoxin concentration in the silo.

Justification For Preservatives

The cost of a preservative may be justifiable if silage is constantly spoiling and leading to poor animal performance.

I have created a table projecting theoretical costs of treating a ton of 35 percent DM corn silage ranging from $1 to $4/ton (Table 2). The cost per cow per day was calculated depending on how much of this silage a cow was eating (20, 40, 60, or 80 lb./day).

Based on this simple calculation, if a cow lost 1 lb. of milk per day (worth $0 14/day) because of consuming spoiled silage, it would be justifiable to treat this silage in all situations with the exception of where 80 pounds of silage treated at a cost of $4 per ton were fed.

It has been difficult to measure the amount of milk production lost when cows are fed spoiled silage, but in a recent study by Wisconsin researchers, cows fed spoiled high moisture corn produced about 7 pounds less milk per day than those fed unspoiled silage.

Preservatives also often help to reduce loss of nutrients in the silo. Calculations can be made for potential savings of dry matter and used to justify the use of the preservative.

Heating and spoiling silage is undesirable because of losses in nutrients and lowered animal performance.

In instances where spoilage is still a major factor, preservatives such as buffered propionic acid and ammonia can be used. Conditions on each farm should be carefully evaluated.

Table 1 Effect of preservatives on the aerobic stability[1] of corn silage under controlled laboratory conditions [2]

Preservative	Untreated Silage	Treated Silage

Direct Marketing Conference Set

ALLENTOWN (Lehigh Co.) — The 1999 Mid-Atlantic Direct Marketing Conference has been set to be held Feb. 17-20 at the Princess Royale Hotel in Ocean City, Maryland.

Workshops are scheduled to be held Feb. 17; conference presentations and seminars are to be held Feb. 18 and Feb. 19; and farm market tours are set for Feb. 20.

The ideas and insights gained from talking with people from Delaware, Maryland, New Jersey, Pennsylvania and Virginia are worth far more than the cost of registration, according to conference officials.

For registration materials, contact Larry Yager at (717) 334-6271.

New at the 1999 convention is to be a contest — the "Marketing Brags and Blunders" competition.

Prizes of free get-away weekends are to be awarded for the best and worst category winners.

In this new competition, marketers from each state are to submit actual farm marketing stories. To enter, call the Pennsylvania Retail Farm Marketing Association.

The contest's two catagories are "Shining Star," and "Worst Nightmare."

Contact people for the contest are Rob Ferber at (610) 876-7116; Larry Yager at (717) 334-6271; or John Berry at (610) 391-9840.

This winter's conference is continuing to bring together marketers, growers, industry, Cooperative Extension organizations, and state departments of agriculture from five mid-Atlantic states.

The annual membership meeting of the Pennsylvania Retail Farm Market Association is to be held during the MADMC.

"Trust in the Lord with all your heart and He will make your path straight" PROVERBS

Holstein ID Tags Sport New Look

BRATTLEBORO, Vt. — Holstein Association USA and Allflex, the supplier of Holstein identificatioin tags, have recently introduced new features to the ID tags.

New styles, colors, and printing options have changed the looks of the tags slightly, but offer significant advantages.

The greatest advantage is the ability to provide more flexibility with the information printed on the ID tags. Five different "layouts" for female tags are available for pre-ordered tags.

Breeders should notice that the laser-printed image of the new tags do not have the black gloss-like finish of the previously heat stamped tags. However, the long term advantage is that the laser printing will be consistent for the entire life of the tag compared to the heat stamped tags that fade slightly over time.

Lighter colored tags in blue, red, green, and purple provide greater readability of these tags. The contrast of the printed image becomes more distinct and will increase the distance the tags can be read.

Tag colors include red, orange, yellow, blue, green, purple, white, and pink.

In addition to the new standard tag formats, "Write-on" tags are available.

In both cases, the American ID number of the animal is printed on the tag. In cases where breeders write additional information on the tag, the American ID number on the Write-on tags is printed as small as possible to reserve more blank space.

A new style of tag, customized tags, can be formatted to include herd management number, date of birth, sire name, dam's number, and American ID number. These tags can include up to two additional lines of information printed on the tags.

A new tag, the "mini-round" is being offered to help improve the permanency of the American ID being attached to the animal for its entire life.

The mini-round is a great option for breeders that want to tag calves immediately at birth or within the first day or two, but feel the maxi and large tags are "too much tag" for newborn calves.

The mini-round also provides a great back-up identifier when the visible Holstein ID Tags are lost. Over time, these tags with the American ID number may be used as an option to replace the traditional metal tags with the state series number.

The style of the male tips is being changed to a closed tip. The change from an open tip, which allowed the pin of the applicator to make the initial opening in the ear, to a closed tip is for added protection on the spread of diseases from one animal to another. The closed male tip causes the pin to be completely covered, thus blood from one animal is less likely to become in contact with the pierced ear of another animal.

Close to 2,600 herds are currently using a form of the Holstein Association's Tag ID progarm. Other options include Tag N' Tattoo and Tag N' Freezebrand. To learn more about Tag ID, contact the Holstein Association at 1-800-952-5200.

Pa. Holstein Championship Features Futurity

STATE COLLEGE (Centre Co.) — The 1998 Pennsylvania Holstein Fall Championship Show will be held 9 a.m., Sept. 22, during the Pennsylvania All-American Dairy Show at the state Farm Show Complex in Harrisburg.

Brian Garrison from Tiffin, Ohio, is to be judge of the association's 18th annual state fall championship show.

Along with recognizing class winners and champions in both the open and youth show, the state association will also be announcing the winners of the 1998 All-Pennsylvania winners, a contest that recognizes outstanding show animal performance, based upon placings from the state spring show, the various regional shows, and the state fall show.

Two additional highlights of the Fall Show include the selection of the winner of the 1998 Keystone Futurity.

There are 40 animals eligible for the contest, which started when the animals were entered as heifers. Eligibility continues over the years as payments are made on time.

The winner of this year's Futurity is to receive more than $1,100. There are awards for other placings in the special contest of 3-year-olds.

Also to be awarded during the Fall Show is the George M. Knight Jr. Total Performance Award. This award is made based on the combination of dairy production and show ring placing, and is sponsored by the Knight family in honor of Mr. Knight.

All Holstein enthusiasts are invited to see the finest show cattle in Pennsylvania along with visiting all the activities of the 35th All-American Dairy Show.

DFA Announces Joint Venture With European Co-op

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — After more than a year under construction, Dairy Farmers of America's (DFA) new whey products plant in New Wilmington, Pennsylvania, is open for business in facilities adjacent to DFA's Farmers Cheese plant

Farmers Cheese, a component of DFA's manufacturing operations, is one of the nation's largest single-site Italian cheese manufacturers and suppliers of whey solids.

According to Lonnie Spurgeon, chief operating officer for DFA Mozzarella Cheese & Butter/Powder Products, the new facility will convert whey (a by-product of cheese making) into high-value ingredients for a broad range of industrial and food products.

The project is a joint effort of the strategic alliance between DMV USA in La Crosse, Wisconsin, and Kansas City-based Dairy Farmers of America. DMV USA is a division of DMV International of Veghel, the Netherlands, which is a part of Campina Melkunie, one of the largest dairy cooperatives in the European Community.

The expansion of the New Wilmington facility will nearly double the 36 million pounds of whey power per year, previously produced at the plant.

Farmers Cheese currently processes sweet whey powder marketed through the partnership.

The new state-of-the-art dryer includes new European processing technology that allows production of a premium product. Currently, the plant is processing whey products, but future plans call for the plant to produce a premium demineralized whey powder that meets requirements for domestic and international sales.

"We are installing technology somewhat differently from any other in the United States," said Spurgeon. "This project includes new technology for electrodialysis (mineral salt removal), and high concentration and crystallization of whey. A new spray dryer, with an 80-foot vertical chamber, has state-of-the-art configuration, designed to maintain product integrity, consistent drying and quality control."

The deminieralized whey project capitalizes on experience and resources made possible through the strategic relationship with DMV USA. John Lyche, president of DMV USA said, "Each organization brings unique qualities to the project. DFA supplies high-quality raw products and facilities, while DMV brings research and development, as well as access to worldwide markets." Lyche added that the demineralized whey powders will be marketed domestically and internationally.

Long term, the project establishes another link to future world markets. "There's worldwide demand for a high quality supply of demineralized whey," Spurgeon said. "But it's up to us to make it work. The goal, like everything else we do, is to maximize returns to our member-owners. The project carries plenty of potential, but no guarantees."

As resources, markets and milk supplies tighten worldwide, and demand for value-added dairy ingredients and components grows, this project represents the opportunities that can evolve when businesses work together, according to the DFA news release

"Both DMV and DFA understood up front, that the market opportunities for a quality whey product supply existed," said Lyche "We simply pooled our resources to tackle the challenge together for shared benefits and mutual opportunity."

Feeding Practices - Article 15

Goal Maximize the utilization of feeds
Minimize the loss of nutrients

How efficiently feeds are utilized is affected by how they are processed and how they are fed

1 Larger-particle feeds in the ration are beneficial when cows are consuming - -
- A lot of finely chopped feeds
A lot of high moisture feeds
- Young, fine-stemmed, lush forages
- Minimum amounts of forage

2 The rumen microbes need soluble protein and soluble carbohydrates in order to grow, to multiply and to digest the ration efficiently These soluble nutrients need to arrive in the rumen at about the same time, in the right amounts and on a rather continual basis throughout the day Otherwise the microbes are shortchanged and the rumen won't function well -- that shortchanges you
- Be sure the ration has sufficient amounts of soluble protein and soluble carbohydrates
- Offer cows some feeds that are high in soluble protein, and some that are high in soluble carbohydrates (corn, barley, etc), in the right amounts, periodically throughout the day
- Avoid feeding cows large slugs of feeds that are high in soluble carbohydrate at any one feeding slug feeding causes acidosis and off-feed problems

3 Feed cows frequently Offer them no more than 8 lb of concentrate per feeding, and feed some forages before offering them concentrates The use of TMR's help to solve this problem

4 Hard kernels need to be ground or rolled finely to increase their digestibility When doing this, be sure there is an adequate amount of effective fiber in the ration to compensate for the finer processing of the feed

Maximize Dry Matter Intake

Goal Maximize DMI in early lactation Entice them to eat more than what they actually want
Keep the cow and her rumen healthy
Hold feed costs at reasonable levels

You are in the business of converting feed into milk To do that, you have to feed cows lots of feed, and it has to be good enough so they can utilize it efficiently If they don't eat it, they can't convert it to milk If they can't digest it they can't convert it to milk

1 How much dry matter should cows eat? It is affected primarily by milk production and body weight Small breeds, producing milk of higher fat and protein content consume more DM per lb of body weight than larger breeds Expected dry matter intakes (DMI) are shown in Table 1

Table 1 Expected Dry Matter Intake as Percent of Body Weight

Milk per Day	Dry	30	40	50	60	70	80	90	100
Large Breeds	1 9	2 5	2 7	3 0	3 3	3 5	3 8	4 1	4 3
Small Breeds	2 0	2 9	3 3	3 7	4 0	4 5	5 0	5 4	5 8

2 Moisture affects DMI Know moisture contents so you know much dry matter cows consume
- Weigh feeds and test for moisture DMI's are affected greatly by changes in moisture content
- A slight change in moisture of high moisture feeds can cause a major change in dry matter as illustrated in Table 2 When the moisture level of silage dropped 10 percentage units, it represented a 14% change in moisture, but a 33% change in dry matter That would be a significant change in the amount of dry matter being fed, that is, if feeding rates were not adjusted for changes in moisture content
- When the moisture content of a dry feed, such as hay, changes by 10 percentage units, it represents a big change in percentage change in moisture, but the affect on dry matter is rather insignificant by comparison

Table 2 Moisture Dry Matter Relationships

	Old Test	New Test	Difference	% Change
Silage Sample
Moisture %	70	60	10	14
DM %	30	40	10	33
Hay Sample
Moisture %	10	20	10	100
DM %	90	80	10	11

The effect these changes have on ration makeup, on DMI and on milk production can be significant as shown in Table 3

Table 3 Moisture-Dry Matter Relationships

Feeds Fed	Lb Fed	% DM	Lb DMI	% DM	Lb DMI
Corn Silage	31	39	12	32	10
Haylage	23	52	12	47	11
Forage DMI			24		21
Concentrate	25	88	22	88	22
Total DMI (lb)			46		43
% of body wt			3 4		3 2
% from forage			52		49
Impact on
DMI					- 3
Milk lb					6-8
Milk $ (@ $12 00/cwt)					$0.72-0.96

A drop in corn silage DM of 7% (from 39 to 32) and in haylage DM of 5% (from 52 to 47) resulted in 3 lb less forage DM being consumed, when no changes were made in the amount of feeds being fed This 3 lb loss in DMI impacted milk production by 6-8 lb That equates to 72-96 cents less milk income per day when milk is priced at $12 00 If forage intake level falls too far, acidosis and off feed problems could develop, making the economic impact worse

3 Getting cows to eat more feed and drink more water
- Keep feeds fresh
Feed frequently and keep feeds pushed up to cows
Don't feed cows partially spoiled feeds
Remove enough ensiled feeds from silos daily to keep the feed fresh
Don't allow uneaten feed to build up in the bunk and heat or spoil
- Keep mangers and waterers clean
- Feed and water should be convenient and easily accessible to cows most hours of the day
- Don't make cows walk long distances for feed and water
- The feed area should be close to a clean comfortable rest area, close to shade and close to an abundant supply of good quality water
- Water intake enhances feed intake
Cows like to gulp down water by the gallons, especially after milking
Cows drink more from vats than from water bowls
Water bowls should be easy for cows to reach and to operate with little effort
Locate waterers close to parlor exits, close to feed areas and close to pasture lots
Assure adequate flow rates (well output, water pressure, pipe size, reserve tanks, etc)
Install water systems that are easy to clean, and then keep them clean
- Provide enough bunk space and plenty of drinking room
About 1.5 to 2 0 feet of bunk space per cow is recommended
Large water vats are preferable to water bowls
- Cows eat and drink better in well-ventilated, well-lit areas that are shaded in summer
- The feeding and watering area should be pleasant, enticing and non-threatening
Make eating and drinking a pleasant experience for cows
Be sure they can reach water bowls and operate valves easily For good access to water bowls, cows need about 18 in of head clearance between the top of the bowl and any rail that is above it
Don't let them get shocked by cow trainers or stray voltage
Don't impair or discourage cows access to feeding and watering areas by - -
Improperly placed neck rails and tie rails
Short chain lengths and improperly positioned cow trainers
High manger curbs Curbs should be only slightly higher than the animals knees
Manger height should be about 4 in higher than the surface cows are standing on Cows prefer simple fence line feeders over locking headgates
- Bossy cows can intimidate other cows and keep them away from feed and water
Create a heifer group, not because of nutritional differences, but for social reasons, it prevents heifers from being intimidated by older cows Intimidation is a stress heifers do not need, especially at the time they first calve and beging their first lactation!
Don't force cows to use dead-ended alleys where they fear being trapped
When cows eat head to head, make the bunk is at least 6 feet wide

Lancaster DHIA

Lancaster Dairy Herd Improvement Assoc.
1592 Old Line Rd. Manheim, PA 17545
(717) 665-5960

JOE GRAYBEAL
Lancaster DHIA
Board President

MANHEIM (Lancaster Co.) — Lancaster Dairy Herd Improvement Association's (LDHIA) board of directors reviewed operations at its most recent meeting.

Jay Mylin, LDHIA manager, reported that the organization continues outstanding growth in number of herds and number of cows.

While significant increases in membership stretches the efforts of the field technicians, every attempt is made to assure quality service.

Collection of test-day data and transmission of data through DRMS continues to average less than two days for all herds with LDHIA.

Dairymen using PCDART should have all information, including sample data, available, on the average, less than 48 hours after testing.

The increase in sample volume continues to be handled efficiently by the testing laboratory.

Jere High, lab manager, reported that the Bently equipment, used to test milk samples, continues to run smoothly. Lab personnel are adjusting to the increased volume of samples without adding additional employees. This helps lower dairymen's testing fees.

High informed the board of LDHIA's recent 100-percent lab quality certification for 1997 from National DHIA. This exceptional performance has continued for four consecutive years.

A new computer and work table were approved by the board to enable lab technicians to more efficiently enter data for herds being tested each day. Basic herds are being processed by a new computer placed in the office of the lab.

As growth continues, the board will spend time reviewing with management the needs of LDHIA, in order to continue to provide high quality least-cost service to its members.

Over the next few months, planning time is scheduled to determine our future needs. LDHIA will be coordinating personnel training efforts with allied industry to better prepare itself.

The board is appreciative of the cooperation it has received from so many members of the industry that support dairymen.

QUESTION: We feed a TMR to our herd and the cows in late lactation show sudden drops in MUN. Does this mean that we should feed more soybean meal to these cows?

ANSWER: Feeding more soybean to your cows will have a pretty good chance of raising MUN, but we need to answer more questions about your feeding management to see if this is your best solution.

It was found that this herd groups by open and pregnant cows. This alone is a pretty good way of grouping for reproductive management, because heat detection can be concentrated in part of the herd instead of all.

There are problems that arise when we try to feed these cows. Looking at the DHIA records, we find that some cows settle in early lactation and others not so early. Why is this a problem?

The early settling cows enter the pregnant group as early as 85 days in milk, with the voluntary waiting period being 55 days, and vet rectal palpation at 30 days post breeding.

We see cows in this group just getting to peak dry matter intake, and cows at reduced intake, as they near their dry period. Vast differences occur between these cows when we look at their nutrient requirements.

The open group of cows has an average MUN of 12.7 and a range of 10.3 to 16.6.

There is also considerable spread in days-in-milk — of 10 to 274.

They are fed a TMR twice daily. The pregnant group of cows are also fed a TMR twice daily, but not the same formulation as the open group.

Comparing average production of both groups, we see that the first group averages 92 pounds and the second 67 pounds.

The drop in production from one group to the other is probably too large and is initiated by the fact that the feeding management is telling those cows to produce less milk by feeding a TMR that drastically reduces grain fed, particularly the protein faction.

When the cows become pregnant, and are fed this diet, their average MUN falls to 8.6 and ragnes from 6 to 13.3

MUN when used as a diagnostic tool, can help us fine tune our diets by allowing the cows to tell us what some of their needs are.

In this particular case, if care was exercised in reducing grain and protein levels as cows were moved from one group to the other, production could be better maintained at a level closer to the first group average.

Grouping cows is a management decision all dairymen have to make.

We can use this case as an example of utilizing a tool like MUN to help us cope with the decision.

Some would criticize and point the finger at the grouping decision as being a wrong one. I disagree and would defend such a decision as one that is custom-fitted to the management style on the farm.

Next, I would encourage changes to that grouping management in small steps to monitor negative effects brought about by treating the groups differently.

More specifically, if you think you must change the diet of the second group, do it by less abrupt changes than will cause production to fall and MUN to go down.

I must say, in conclusion, that I have become a supporter of single ration TMRs over the past years due to problems like the one discussed.

Cows don't always know what they need, but they usually do eat more if they are hungry and healthy, and eat less when they don't need it.

This style of feeding also contributes to higher persistency of production which spells higher profits.

MUN can tell us if an how much to alter diets. Use this tool to read the needs of the cow and then to manage to her needs.

Grouping is a management strategy fit to this farm and MUN is an evaluation of how to use this strategy.

Keeping all cows within the 10 to 14 range of MUN tells us that at least they are utilizing protein provided in the most efficient way. That is certainly a better start than what we had in the past.

Average Farm Feed Costs For Handy Reference

To help farmers across the state to have handy reference of commodity input costs in their feeding operations for DHIA record sheets or to develop livestock feed cost data, here's last week's average costs of various ingredients as compiled from regional reports across the state of Pennsylvania.

Remember, these are averages, so you will need to adjust your figures up or down according to your location and the quality of your crop.

Best Friends Clinch Solanco Market Lamb Championships

LOU ANN GOOD

QUARRYVILLE (Lancaster Co.) — Best friends swept the grand and reserve championships at the Solanco Sheep Show on Wednesday.

This wasn't the first year Allison Hughes and Tiffany Dean caused the judge some comtemplation in the show ring.

"These are the two best lambs I've seen today," said Ron Miller, who judged the event. He praised the lambs for muscling, hind quarters, and length of loin.

In the end, it was Allison's spotted crossbred lamb that won the grand championship and Tiffany's lamb from Tim Fleener that took the reserve trophy. Both 125-pound lambs had been the champion and reserve in the heavyweight class respectively.

The 12-year-old friends said that they agree on almost everything except one—feeding. Tiffany feeds her lambs Purina Show Chow and Allison feeds hers a grain mixture devised by a family friend.

If it's in the feed, the mixtures must be comparable because both have about the same number of championships and reserves accumulated in recent years. In fact, Tiffany, later in the show, went on to win champion pair of market lamb.

Allison is the daughter of Chet and Marie Hughes of Lancaster and Tiffany is the daughter of Gary and Joan Dean of Strasburg.

The final showdown also included the lightweight champion shown by April Leaman and the reserve lightweight by Jill Kreider. Middleweight champion was shown by Brent Landis and reserve by Allison Hughes. Brother and sister Brad and April Leaman swept the light heavyweight competition with almost identical lambs. Brad also too the reserve grand champion title for market lamb pairs.

Champion in showmanship was Jessica Schmidt of Drumore. The 16-year-old is the daughter of Pete and Laurie Schmidt. Reserve in showmanship was April Leaman, 15, and daughter of David and Jackie Leaman of Willow Street.

Brown Swiss Is Supreme At Maryland State Fair

KAREN BUTLER
Maryland Correspondent

TIMONIUM, MD. - An aged Brown Swiss cow proved she could hold her own against some stiff competition in the showring here at the Cow Palace at the fairgrounds in Timonium.

When all was said and done, Shen-Val Jades Kara, the milky 7-1/2-year-old Brown Swiss, edged out her competitors and was named supreme champion of all the dairy breeds here at the Maryland State Fair.

Judges for the supreme champion dairy cow contest were Jim Burdette, a Holstein breeder from southern Pennsylvania; Gary Culbertson, a Holstein breeder from New York; and Jeff Myers, who works with the Maryland State 4-H program.

Judge Myers emphasized that he felt this was the best all-around group of cows that has been at the state fair in the last several years. "She won", he said, "but she won with some real stiff competition."

Myers said the cow's maturity and her combination of dairyness and strength gave her the edge she needed to take home the supreme cow title.

"She's an aged cow who handles her legs extremely well. She has an outstanding mammary system. And she just had the quality throughout," he explained

Kara, scored Excellent -92, is owned and exhibited by Elliot Kueffner, of Boonsboro, Washington County, Maryland Dale Bendig led the cow around the ring

Fresh in March, Kara started the show season off this year by taking home the grand champion rosette at the 1998 Ohio spring show She had a 350-day record at 4-10 of 28,399 pounds of milk, with 1,264 pounds, 4.5% of fat and 1,064 pounds, 3.8% of protein.

For her win, Kara was awarded the Richard N. Wills supreme champion dairy cow trophy, presented by George Wills and Susan Hunter.

Competing with Kara for the supreme champion title were the grand champions in each dairy breed show at the state fair.

The grand champion Ayrshire was Sunnyfield BBK Presence, a junior 3-year-old owned and exhibited by Maple Dell Farm, Woodbine, Maryland. The Ayrshire was producing more than 80 pounds of milk a day.

The grand champion Guernsey was Dix-Lee Perfecto Fawna-Twin, a 5-year-old bred and owned by Brett Dixon of Chestertown, Kent County, Maryland.

Fawna has been grand champion at numerous other shows, including the Maryland Guernsey field day open and 4-H shows, the national junior Guernsey show at Louisville in 1997. She was supreme champion on this year at the Maryland state 4-H show, reserve grand champion Guernsey at the 1997 Maryland state fair open and 4-H shows, and was a reserve All-American Guernsey in 1997.

The grand champion Holstein was Hickory-Green Wauren Star, a 4-year-old owned and exhibited by Chris and Budgee Hill and Paul Harrison III of Burkitsville, Md. She had a 3-year-old record of 296 days, where she made over 30,5000 pounds of milk with 1,033 pounds, 3.8% fat and 885, 2.9% protein.

The grand champion Jersey was Curtseys KJ Holly. Scored Excellent- 93, the Jersey was exhibited by Waverly Farms, Clearbrook, Virginia, and shown by Paul Stiles.

Holly was grand champion this year at the New York spring show, and was reserve supreme champion there also She has a 3-4 record of 207 days making 14,132 pounds of milk with 595 fat and 494 protein. She has a projected ME (mature equivalent) of 21,446 pounds of milk, 871 of fat, and 740 of protein.

The grand champion Milking Shorthorn was Spring Meadows Arthurs Destiny, a senior 3-year-old owned and exhibited by Emily Ollum of Spring Meadows Farms in Centerburg, Ohio. Destiny is a past grand champion at the Montgomery County Fair, and had a 2-03, 305 day record of 15,500 pounds of milk, 591 pounds, 3.8% fat, and 506 pounds, 3.3% protein.

MDA to Run Aflatoxin Tests

ANNAPOLIS, Md. — Maryland Secretary of Agriculture Henry A. Virts announced recently that the Maryland Department of Agriculture will offer free aflatoxin tests for farmers worried about drought stress on their 1998 corn crops.

"Last year we offered such help in response to drought. Here again in 1998, farmers are faced with possible loss due to an odd combination of drought stress on corn coupled with moisture at the wrong time and aflatoxin mold spores," Virts said.

Aflatoxin is a mold which can infest corn grown under the stress of drought and heat Badly contaminated corn is dangerous if fed to livestock, particularly poultry. Maryland first experienced aflatoxin problems in corn as a result of a drought in 1983.

Farmers interested in the aflatoxin testing program should contact their county extension service office for details.

Sarah's Champion Denver Hog Fits Judge's 'Image'

ANDY ANDREWS

DENVER (Lancaster Co.) — Denver swine show judge Larry Arnold, Womelsdorf, always keeps in mind the "image" of what a great show hog should look like — long-bodied, heavily muscled, lean and correct.

Sarah Boyd's 270-pound crossbred gilt met that image Tuesday night at the market swine championship at the Denver Fair.

"If you wanted to draw an ideal hog, you'd pretty much get that," he noted about Sarah's supreme champion.

Sarah, 17, daughter of Deb and Kerry Boyd, Ephrata, is a senior at Ephrata High School. Sarah showed a York/Hampshire/Pietrain crossbred nicknamed "Patches."

The gilt has a "spot on her back," said Sarah, which helped her name it. It's also known as a Bluebutt hog in the industry.

The gilt was homebred using a sow that was the "sister to the champion junior barrow and reserve overall at KILE last year," her father, Kerry, noted. The sow was AI'd.

Sarah will be showing at the Ephrata and New Holland fairs, in addition to the Keystone International Livestock Expo (KILE) and state Farm Show.

Reserve overall was a "long-bodied, heavily muscled, shapely kind of pig," said Arnold. He chose the 265-pound Hampshire crossbred gilt shown by Kyle Fleener, 14, son of Tim and Sarah Fleener, Robesonia.

Kyle, in the ninth grade at Eastern Lebanon County High School, said he has won reserve champion hog the past three years at Denver.

The reserve champion hog, from Kerry Boyd in Ephrata, stood out as a baby. "It was real long and clean," noted Sarah, Kyle's mother.

Kyle will be showing at KILE and at Farm Show.

There were a total of 24 exhibitors and 47 hogs at the Denver Fair. Following is a list of show placings.

Showmanship first place winners at Denver were, from left, Jenny Hoover, overall champion, and first place winners Kyle Parker and Gerald Martin.

York Fair Holds Open and Junior Beef Shows

LOU ANN GOOD
Lancaster Farming Staff

YORK (York Co.) — Tammi Grubb showed the grand champion market steer in Junior Beef Competition at the York Fair recently.

"It's a meat wagon," said Cheryl Fairbairn who judged the 1,270 heavyweight and the 31 entries in junior competition.

It was Tammi's first championship in nine years of showing but the third time she was named grand champion showman at York Fair.

Tammi's advice to youth starting in showing is "Be patient. When the time comes (to win), it's great!"

Tears will be shed, Tammi said of the upcoming parting when Coby will be sold at the livestock sale. Coby had been purchased from Paul Miller.

Tammi is the daughter of Carl and Brenda Grubb who raise Angus and Hereford breeding cattle at Sunset Hollow Farm in Hanover.

The reserve grand champion steer in the junior show went to Hope Long, who was also the reserve showman. Her crossbred steer Bugsie weighed 1,230 pounds. Bugsie, named because of his bug-eyed look, was purchased from Tim Fitzgerald of Va.

Hope, 13, is the daughter of Samuel and Vicki Long who operate Long View Acres of Airville.

Ironically, Bugsie competed in the open market show against 55 head and was named grand champion over all breeds.

The grand champion Polled Hereford Kai-T was homebred at the Mike and Mardene Firestine's Map Farm and shown by Margeaux Firestine, 13. The Firestines have about 30 Polled Herefords.

Steve Nelson of Forest Hill, Md., showed the grand champion Simmental in the open beef show.

The judge selected the Simmental for its feminity.

The supreme champion bull was from Salunga Acres, which is owned by Dorothy Metzler. The two-year-old named Salunga Yankee was previously named grand champion at the New York State Fair, reserve champion at the Maryland State Fair, and supreme champion at the Pennsylvania Farm Show.

Cited for its very correct structure soundness and well balance, the champion bull is part of the 125 cow-herd at Salunga Acres in Lancaster County.

According to manager C.J. Furlong, Salunga Acres will hold its fourth production sale on Nov. 7.

In open classes, Tammi Grubb of Sunset Hollow Farm showed the champion Angus bull, which is owned in partnership with Turning Point Angus of Berryville, Va. the bull was a previous champion at both the Pennsylvania breeders show and at the State Farm Show.

In the Open Market Beef Show judged by Greg Kreuger, he said that all breed champions had adequate musceling and structure soundness. "I basically judge cattle from behind," he said in looking for thickness.

Although Krueger said each breed adds something to the industry, he believes the Angus breed shows more structual soundness and more of what the industry wants.

Hope Long showed Bugsie to take grand champion honors over all breeds.

Jay Rishel showed the reserve champion market steer in the open market beef show. The heavyweight steer named Guy was the champion Angus and reserve heavyweight.

The 17-year-old has been showing for three to four years, but this was his first major win. That same day, Jay also showed the champion Hampshire ewe and lamb in the youth and open shows. Jay lives with his parents Dick and Becky Rishel on a small farmette RJR Hampshires in Seven Valleys.

This Solanco Champion Hog Should've Been Named 'Reciprocation'

ANDY ANDREWS
Lancaster Farming Staff

QUARRYVILLE (Lancaster Co.) — Allison Hughes knew she had to return a favor to her brother Andy.

After all, Andy had shown her hog at the county 4-H swine roundup a month ago. And since they both work on each other's hog, it was only expected that the favor would come during the Solanco market hog show.

Little did Allison expect her brother's heavyweight champion hog, which she paraded in the show ring, to become grand champion market hog Thursday evening at the Solanco Fair.

Andy, 10, is the son of Chet and Marie Hughes, Lancaster. The Hans Herr fourth grader also showed the light heavyweight champion hog, "Miss Imac," named in honor of the hog's sire, Imax, and also after the new Apple computer.

But as for the champion, Andy said, "I bought the pig from my uncle," he said — Keith Bard, Portage.

Andy also won champion beginner showman at the fair.

The 266-pound Hampshire crossbred gilt was named grand champion in tough competition with gilts from three other classes. This was Andy's first grand champion at Solanco.

Allison, 12, is in the 7th grade at Martin Meylin Middle School. Allison, who plans to attend West Lampeter Community Farm Show and the state Farm Show, said the hog is one of 13 the family takes care of.

Negotiations on how, exactly, the brother-sister duo will handle the award honors were still under way as of presstime.

The judge, Dave Hartman, Columbia County livestock agent from Bloomsburg, said he liked the "overall value, dimension and width," of the Hughes' hog.

Reserve overall was the heavyweight reserve, a 260-pound York/Landrace/Hampshire/Duroc shown by Rachel Ranck. Judge Dave Hartman said he "liked the gray hog right from the start," citing the hog as a powerful one, with "wide-appearing shoulders" and width "from front to rear."

Rachel, 10, is the daughter of Jim and Joan Ranck, Christiana. This is her first Solanco champion. She is in the fifth grade at West Fallowfield Christian School. The 260-pound barrow was homebred, boar-sired.

Rachel's father, Jim, said that he and Rachel's brothers, Jeremy and Alex, helped select the hog for show. Rachel placed high in the county roundup this year.

There were a total of 94 hogs and about 46 exhibitors at the market swine show. Following is a list of show placings.

Jessica Shows 'Oliver' To Champion

ANDY ANDREWS
Lancaster Farming Staff

QUARRYVILLE (Lancaster Co.) — An Angus/Simmental calf that "looks like an Oliver" was named grand champion of the market steer show at the Solanco Fair Thursday night.

Exhibitor Jessica Schmidt, who nicknamed the 1,300-pound steer, walked away with the champion heavyweight and grand champion overall steer at the show.

This was the first grand champion steer at Solanco for Jessica, 16, daughter of Laurie and Peter Schmidt, Drumore. Jessica, a junior at Solanco High School, purchased the steer from Tim Fitzgerald, Aldie, Va.

Jessica, a champion fitter at Solanco, said the champion was the result of feeding and exercise. Her feeding program is simple — barley and corn and oats.

The judge, Zeb O'Boyle, manager of Jackson Hole Farm, Upperco, Md., said the steer was "really deep in lower quarters, thick the whole way through, a real long calf — thick through the front end with a super shoulder."

O'Boyle said the finish on the steer was enough, not overdone, a "really nice calf."

Jessica, who won reserve champion at the fair last year, took Oliver to the Pennsylvania Beef Expo, the county 4-H fair, and to Solanco. She said she would sell the calf at Solanco. She plans to take two purebred Angus heifers to the Farm Show.

Reserve went to Jim Mullen, who won champion of the middleweight division with a 1,220-pound Angus/Hereford crossbred. The steer, nicknamed "Baldie," was purchased from Donny Walters, York County.

Judge O'Boyle said the reserve was "deep and decent across the top."

Jim, 17, is the son of James and Elaine Mullen, Wakefield. The Solanco High School senior said this was the first time he had ever shown steers.

There were a total of nine exhibitors and nine steers. Following is a list of show placings.

Brown Swiss Breeders Recognize Outstanding Youth

BELOIT, Wis. — During the 1998 National Brown Swiss Convention held in Salina, Kansas five finalists who interviewed for the title of 1998 National Brown Swiss ambassador, were recognized.

The National Brown Swiss Ambassador serves as a role model for Brown Swiss youth and as a spokesperson for the association and the dairy industry.

Out of those five, Elizabeth Anna Smith, the 19-year-old daughter of Tom and Dale Smith of Denver, Pennsylvania, was crowned as the 1998 National Ambassador. Elizabeth has been a Brown Swiss junior member for 11 years and resides on her family's dairy farm, King and Queen Farm.

Elizabeth has held many 4-H offices. She was the distinguished county 4-H graduate and served as the 1997-98 Lancaster County Dairy Princess. She exhibited the 1993 Eastern National Junior Brown Swiss Show grand champion. Elizabeth was also recognized as the 1997 National District II Brown Swiss Youth Achievement winner. Majoring in communications with an agriculture minor at Penn State University, Elizabeth would like to pursue a career in milk marketing.

National Youth Achievement Winner

Youth Achievement winners for 1997 were also named at the National Brown Swiss Convention.

The winners represented seven districts from all across the United States. Jeremy McDonald of Stephens City, Virginia, took home top honors as he was named the 1997 National Youth Achievement Winner, as well as the District III Achievement Winner. Jeremy and his parents, Gary and Sharon McDonald, own Shen-Val Farm which consists of registered Brown Swiss and Holstein cattle.

Jeremy owns 41 head of Brown Swiss, including 23 cows, eight yearlings and 10 calves. He has had a Brown Swiss project for the last 16 years and is an active national and junior member of the Brown Swiss Association.

Jeremy has been the proud owner of numerous state, national and reserve national bell-ringers. He has also been participating in county, district, state and national shows since 1988. Jeremy's goals for the future include owning a herd of 30 Brown Swiss and 30 Holsteins which will allow him to combine type and high quantities of milk production.

The Brown Swiss Cattle Breeders' Association, headquartered in Beloit, Wisconsin, was founded to serve as the national organization for the registration and promotion of Brown Swiss cattle.

Ozark Empire Fair Names Winners

SPRINGFIELD, Mo. — Breeders paraded 155 entries for judge Steven Schmalenberger at the 1998 Ozark Empire Fair Angus Show here recently.

Taking supreme champion and grand champion female honors was Clearwater Eriskay J 227. This January 1997 daughter of Bon View Balance 834, is owned by James Pipkin, Republic, Mo. She first won junior champion heifer honors.

K W C C Marrita 7203 earned reserve grand champion female laurels for Kissee & Wallace Cattle Co., Mt. Vernon, Mo. This February 1997 daughter of O C C Backstop 888B earlier won reserve junior champion heifer honors.

In the bull show, Clearwater Headliner won grand champion honors. This April 1996 son of Rito 9FB3 of 5H11 Fullback was exhibited by Clearwater Farm, Springfield, Mo., and C K H Angus, Jackson, Mo., and was first named senior champion bull.

Kissee & Wallace Cattle Co., Mt. Vernon, Mo.; Chandler Cattle Co., Augusta, Kan.; and Black Wave, Middletown, Md., led K W C C Crossbar 7059 to reserve grand champion bull award. He is a March 1997 son of Sedgwicks Rebar, which earlier took junior champion bull honors.

National Championships To Be Decided At Horse Show

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — The Pennsylvania National Horse Show, Oct. 8-17 at the State Farm Show Complex is not only the country's largest multibreed indoor horse show. It's also the setting for the country's fiercest equestrian competition, as seven coveted national titles will be decided.

One of only three USA Junior Olympics-Equestrian events, and the only to be held east of the Mississippi, is the American Horse Shows Association/Black Entertainment Television National Junior Jumper Championship. Teams of the top four riders under age 18 from each zone, or region, of the U.S. compete over jumps for Junior Olympic gold, silver, and bronze medals on Saturday night, October 10. The rivalry is especially fierce between traditional contenders Zone 10, which includes California and Nevada, and the hometown favorite Zone 2 — Pennsylvania, New York and New Jersey — the victors in 1997. The young riders compete for individual titles on Thursday and Friday, Oct. 8-9.

The Junior Jumper championship precedes by one day the American Horse Shows Association/Eisers and Pessoa National Hunt Seat Equitation Medal Championship, which will celebrate its golden anniversary in 1998. More than 200 of the country's top young riders under age 18 endure a grueling day of competition and advanced tests over fences as they are judged on their horsemanship and control. The field is slowly narrowed until a handful of finalists are given a final test, which may be as difficult as jumping a challenging course without coaching and on a horse they've never before ridden.

The prize is the Medal that recognizes the best young rider in the country. The list of riders who have won over the past 50 years reads like a "who's who" of American equestrian sports, many of whom have gone on to represent the U.S. internationally in Olympic and World Cup competition.

Pennsylvania is home to more foxhunting clubs than any state except Virginia, so it's only fitting that the North American Foxhunting Horn Blowing Championship be held at the Pennsylvania National Created by the Master of Foxhounds Association in 1995, the championship will be held during Hunt Night, sponsored by Mellon Bank, on Monday, Oct. 12. The championship tests the ability of hunt staff to execute the four traditional melodies that communicate to hunters spread over a wide area the movement of the hounds in the hunt field.

A new national title for professional jumper riders will be held for the first time on Friday evening, Oct. 16. The North American League Open Jumper Speed Series $25,000 Championship, presented by Baron Farms, showcases top professional riders on the true speedsters of the open jumper ranks — those who jump high and go fast. Riders have qualified for the finals by competing successfully throughout 1998 over fences 4 feet 9 inches high at shows from Florida to Ontario and in the midwest.

Other national titles decided at the show are the North American League Children's Jumper Finals, Wednesday, Oct. 14, the North American League Adult Jumper Finals, Saturday, Oct. 17, the North American League Children's Hunter Finals, Tuesday, Oct. 13, and the North American League Adult Hunter Finals, Friday, Oct. 16. These championships are for amateur adults and children, competing over fences no higher than 3 feet 6 inches.

Other world class championships are held at the PNHS, among them the $50,000 Budweiser Grand Prix de Penn National, part of the Budweiser/American Grand Prix Series of Showjumping, held Saturday night, Oct. 17, and the $25,000 Pennsylvania Big Jump, Thursday, Oct. 15. Both are used by the U.S. Equestrian Team to pick the horses and riders who will compete internationally under the American flag.

Pennsylvania Farmers Union Urges Measures To Boost Livestock Market

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — For the region's financially strapped livestock producers, two key measures before Congress would provide a badly needed boost, State President Robert Junk said.

The proposals, to require price reporting on all livestock sales and the labeling of imported meat, will help make the market more fair and competitive for the nation's producers.

Mandatory price reporting will help end anti-competitive practices that have kept prices low for producers. Nearly 80 percent of red meat processing nationwide is controlled by just three multinational firms. And, despite precipitous drops in the prices of live animals, consumer prices for meat have remained constant.

"Mandatory price reporting will help end secret deals in the livestock industry that drive prices down," said Robert Junk. "Producers, like anyone else selling a product, deserve full information in order to make sound, market driven business decisions. Without price transparency, the buyer rules and the seller gets a low price. That is by no means a fair, free or competitive market."

The second measure will require "domestic" or "imported" labels on most beef and lamb products. Meat produced in the U.S. meets the most rigorous health standards in the world. Labeling will give consumers, who have invested in our food safety system, the right to choose U.S. produced meat.

"U.S. producers provide the safest food supply in the world, and we're proud of it. Labeling will allow consumers to support that proud tradition," Robert Junk said.

Producers should call their senators and member of Congress and ask them to support mandatory price reporting and country-of-origin labeling. They can be contacted through the Capitol operator at 202-224-2131. For more information, call National Farmers Union at 1-877-466-2277 also Farmers Union on the Internet: http://www.nfu.org.

Festival Features 'Made With Chicken' Contest

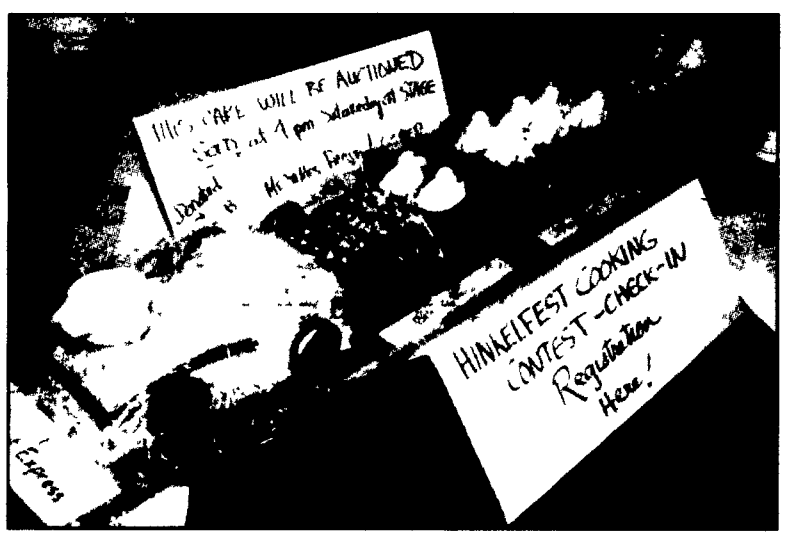
The Hinkelfest is a 7-year-old tradition in Fredericksburg.



This item donated to the festival also helps raise money for the community organizations. The 1998 Hinkelfest Express cake railroad car was donated by Mr. and Mrs. Frank Leeper, Fredericksburg, and sold at auction.

ANDY ANDREWS
Lancaster Farming Staff

FREDERICKSBURG (Lebanon Co.) — Three days and nothing but chicken.

On sale were chicken burgers, hot dogs, corn soup, and all sorts of creative chicken combinations. There were chicken quarters, halves, and legs, chicken chowder, pot pie, egg roll, stir fry, and chicken and waffles.

There were the "chicken men" on hand to shake hands with young and old alike.

Last weekend, beginning Friday and continuing through Sunday, more than 10,000 people from the Fredericksburg region delighted in the wonders of chicken at the 1998 Hinkelfest Chicken Festival at the Farmer's Pride Airport in Fredericksburg.

The theme this year? What else? "Eggs 'n' Wings 'n' Chicken Things."

With great cooperating weather, Saturday was the busiest day for the annual "Hinkel" (German for chicken) festival, when thousands of people visited the Farmer's Pride Airport to get great chicken meals and delight in the versatile ways in which chicken and egg products can be prepared.

A big event of the contest was the annual chicken cooking contest from which 49 recipes for chicken and desserts were entered from 23 contestants (19 women and four men) from all over the region, including Fredericksburg, Pine Grove, Jonestown, Lebanon, Myerstown, and other places, according to Alletta (Letie) Schadler, Lebanon family agent. "We even have people from as far away as New Jersey," she said.

The contest was open to anyone. Lancaster Farming lists the first place recipes in this article.

This is the 7th year for the annual festival, according to Mike Zeck, chairman of the festival. Zeck, social studies teacher at the Lebanon City Middle School, said the festival, begun in 1991, mirrors the annual Delmarva Chicken Festival, sponsored by several processors. The '98 Hinkelfest was sponsored by Farmer's Pride, Bell and Evans, Dutch Country Egg Farms, College Hill, and other producers and packers.

Proceeds after expenses for chicken sold at the festival benefit several charitable organizations, including the Fredericksburg Community Library, Community Association, Fire Company, American Legion, and Lions Club. Volunteers worked behind the booths, selling chicken all weekend long.

Entertainment was provided free. Included were lots of amusement rides, demonstrations, a petting zoo, craft show, and vendors.

At the contest, chicken and dessert recipes were broken down into six categories, according to Letie Schadler of the Lebanon extension office. They included grilled breasts (which had four entries); breasts prepared in any variety of ways (seven entries); dark meat, legs and thighs (10 entries); soups, sandwiches, and chowders (six entries); egg or chicken sandwiches (seven entries); and desserts (15 entries). With desserts, the recipe had to include at least four eggs.

Winners received $50 for first place, $30 for second, and $20 for third.

"This is simply a favorite recipe, not necessarily original recipe, contest," said Schadler. "It includes family-sized recipes."

There were two judges for every category. Judges included Mike Zeck, Hinkelfest chairman, and Laura Farrelly, Allen Family Foods, Seaford, Del., who judged the grilled breasts and soups and sandwiches; John Rutherford, farm management extension multicounty agent and Chuck Wertz, director of the Lebanon County Conservation District, for the remaining chicken categories; and, for desserts, Rep. Peter Zug (R-102nd) and Andy Andrews, Lancaster Farming staff writer.

An item donated to the festival also helps raise money for the community organizations. This year, the 1998 Hinkelfest Express cake railroad car was donated by Mr. and Mrs. Frank Leeper, Fredericksburg, and sold at auction. The yellow cake was made up like a huge express train that featured liquorice as the rails, the wheels were Oreo cookies, and candy corn, sugar-coated chickens, and chocolate-covered almonds were the cargo.

Volunteers at the cooking contest included Helen Reedy, Barbara Bauer, and Letie Schadler.

The turnout was the best ever on the opening day of the festival, according to some volunteers who helped park cars.

Twelve hundred half-chickens were barbecued. Saturday looked to be the same, and by the time the weekend was through, about 10,000 people were expected to have attended the festival, noted Mike Zeck, festival chairman.

"The food is the highlight of the festival, and people love to come out and eat," Zeck said.

In the contest's first year, about $85,000 in sales of chicken were generated, noted Zeck.

At the cooking contest, first place winners included Nancy Peiffer, Jonestown, for her soups and chowder entry, Chicken and Dumpling Soup. First place in the legs category went to Charlene

Ziegler, Fredericksburg, for her Roasted Chicken Legs With GOLD (made with *G*arlic cloves, *O*live oil, *L*emon juice, and fresh *D*ill).

Grilled breast category first place went to Carolyn Brandt, Myerstown, for her Tequila Chicken. First place in the sandwich category went to Sandy Agee, Lebanon, for her Caribbean Chicken Salad. First place in the breast category went to the recipe, Cheese Stuffed Chicken Rolls, prepared by Carolyn Brandt, Myerstown.

First place in the dessert contest went to Robin Norton, Bethel, for her Chocolate Chip Pecan Squares.

Said Norton, "The recipe is a family favorite, a combination of two recipes — chocolate chip pecan bars and another for pecan squares." She combined chocolate chips in the recipe.

This recipe, a family favorite, just is a "little bit gooier," she said.

In the contest, dishes were judged on appearance, flavor, doneness, creativity, and recipe simplicity and clarity.

By the way — four men entered the contest, and they all went home with prizes, noted Schadler.

Following are the top recipes from this year's Hinkelfest.

CHICKEN AND DUMPLING SOUP

2 whole chicken breasts
1 quart water

Cook until tender. Remove breast and cool. Adjust flavor with bouillon cubes. Cook and skim off the fat from broth.

To the broth, add:
1 medium chopped onion
2 minced carrots
1 cup frozen peas
1 cup celery
1 tablespoon parsley
¼ teaspoon butter
½ teaspoon pepper

Cook until tender, about ½ hour. Add 1 can cream of chicken soup. Add chicken breast (diced to bite-sized pieces).

Bring to a boil for dumplings: Stir together:
⅔ cup Biscuit mix
½ cup corn meal
½ cup milk
¼ cup shredded cheese.

Drop batter onto hot liquid, making 12 dumplings. (Drop by teaspoon.) Reduce heat. Cover. Do not lift cover. Simmer for 12 minutes. Serves 4.

Nancy Peiffer
Jonestown

TEQUILA CHICKEN

¼ cup lime juice
¼ cup tequila
1 tablespoon cooking oil
2 cloves garlic, minced
¼ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
4 medium chicken breasts
1 cup chunky salsa
1 medium tomato
2 tablespoons honey

In a shallow dish, combine lime juice, tequila, cooking oil, garlic, salt, and pepper. Rinse chicken; pat dry. Add chicken to marinade, turning to coat. Cover and chill about 1 hour.

Meanwhile, for tomato salsa, in a small bowl combine chunky salsa and chopped tomato. Set aside.

Drain chicken, reserving marinade. Stir honey into marinade.

Grill chicken for 5-10 minutes. Turn chicken and brush with marinade. Grill for 5-10 minutes more. Serve with tomato salsa. Serves 4.

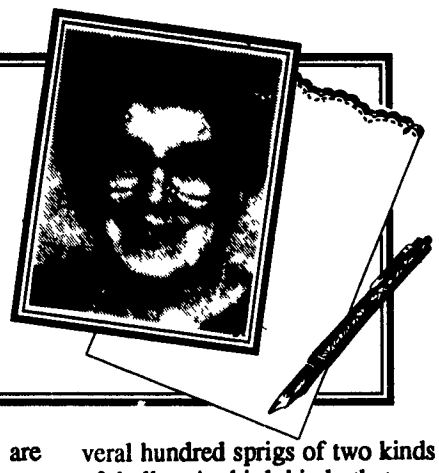
Ida's Notebook

by

Ida Risser



This year our sunflowers are three different colors. They have names like "Lemon Eclair," "Sunset" and "Sunrise." And, they range in color from yellow to gold to mahogany. We hope the birds will enjoy the seeds.

I've been pruning some shrubbery and have discovered that it can be used for decoration by a committee decorating for my high school reunion. They will need several hundred sprigs of two kinds of holly. A third kind, that we have around our front porch, is covered with red berries this year. Some years there are only a few berries for the birds to eat and for me to use as decorations.

Speaking of decorations, this year I planted four kinds of strawflowers and I've been hanging them up to dry. Some of the maroon ones look nice in a red glass vase with honesty or money plant on the dining room table.

My husband has been working hard to help me start a new iris bed. He bought old railroad ties and dug them in at the base of a big hill. One obstacle that we had to overcome was the activities of our cats at nighttime — they scratched the bare roots out of the ground. So, he covered the plot with fencing and posts.

This year our peaches and our pears rotted on the trees. And, our cherry trees lost their leaves after the fruit was picked. Next year we shall have to do more spraying. Working with imperfect fruit makes one appreciate perfect fruit. It seems that you don't have anything without a lot of effort.

Goat Foolery

FALMOUTH (Lancaster Co.) — What started out as a practical joke 19 years ago—the running of the goats—continues in the village of Falmouth on Sept. 26.

Stop by the race and enjoy some of the goat foolery that has has been going on in those parts for 19 years. The Falmouth Goat Race will be held at the Governors Stable Park in the village of Falmouth, which is just off Rt. 441 on Turnpike Rd. Look for signs.

Goat registration is from 8 a.m. to 10 a.m. Prizes are awarded for the ugliest, prettiest, biggest, smallest, longest horns, and best-dressed goat and handler. Races start at 10 a.m.

If you don't have a goat, you can rent one at the race. Activities include live entertainment by Steve Courtney and others all day long. More than 50 craft stands will display their wares including many goat items.

Food is available throughout the day beginning with breakfast at 6:30 a.m.

Stretch Your Budget With Rice

What comes in a variety of flavors and complements any meal?

Rice. It's emerging as the "new" food of choice.

Not so long ago, our selection of rice was limited. Not any more. Today, we can choose from wild to cajun to pilaf. Rice not only tastes great, it's nutritious, low in calories, and simple to prepare.

Many want to know if wild rice is different from regular rice. In fact, wild rice isn't rice at all. Wild rice is very nutritious. It has more protein and fewer calories than regular rice, as well as B vitamins. A small portion of wild rice can be economically combined with other ingredients to give recipes a hearty and distinctive flavor.

Take a look at these recipes, especially the delightful tale sent in by Sara Runkle, and you can clearly see how versatile rice is to include in your daily menu.

CURRIED RICE

¼ cup dry sherry
⅓ cup raisins
14½ -ounce can chicken broth
¾ cup milk
⅓ cup catsup
½ teaspoon salt
2 teaspoons curry powder
1 cup uncooked long grain rice
2 tablespoons slivered almonds, toasted

Heat sherry in small saucepan. Add raisins and let stand 15 minutes. Bring chicken broth and next four ingredients to a boil in a large skillet. Stir in rice. Cover, reduce heat and simmer 20 minutes or until rice is tender. Stir in almonds and raisin mixture. Serve immediately. Serves 8.

SALLY SOUP

Makes 1 gallon

Broth for Sally Soup:
5-pound roasting chicken, cut-up
1 medium onion, sliced
1 cup chopped celery
1 clove garlic, chopped
1½ quarts water
Salt and pepper
1 tablespoon parsley
2 bay leaves

Combine all ingredients. Roast at 350 degrees for about 2-2½ hours. Cool. Pick meat from bones, chop, except save the breast meat for sandwiches or casseroles.

Recook bones and skin. Boil 10 minutes. Strain broth. Add water if necessary to make 2 quarts.

Soup mixture:
2 cups chopped chicken from roasted chicken
1¼ cups converted rice
2½ cups water
2 carrots, chopped
2 pieces celery, chopped
1 medium onion, chopped
1 bay leaf
1 tablespoon parsley
1 tablespoon chicken base
2 quarts strained broth from roasted chicken
Salt and pepper, to taste

Cook together all ingredients except meat and 2-quarts reserved broth, which are added at the end.

Hard-boiled egg can be added if you want added protein or a garnish.

Seven years ago my husband, at the age of 43, decided to change his life-long profession from the banking and business world to a small veal operation.

Both he an I were born and raised in the city of York. I knew very little about farming, animals, gardening, or even how to get the feathers off a chicken before roasting. This may sound funny to long-time farmer wives, but actually this wasn't real funny of a 43-year-old women who had only purchased groceries at the store all her life. We joined a Mennonite chuch at the same time as the career change.

This little farm was changed from an old run-down dairy farm to a veal operation. The men from our church came for about six to nine months to help rebuild our barn so it would become a workable veal operation. It was necessary for me to feed six to 12 hungry men a couple days a week as the men wourked on the barn.

So was born "Sally Soup" out of necessity.

I needed to stay on a tight budget while we were sinking our life's savings into the farm. Our church family gave many free hours of labor, lumber, goods', food and love during this time. We are grateful to them for their Christ-like attitude and actions. I served the "Sally Soup," that year. My friend, Salome Yoder, named the soup. Whenever we eat the soup, it brings back sweet memories. I have learned many things in the past seven years, thanks to my husband, neighbors, and friends. I even learned how to feed veal calves and clean my own chickens.

This story proves you can teach an old dog new tricks. Now I can the soup and sell it or give as gifts to the sick or shut-ins.

Many neighbors and friends have been blessed by this simple recipe.

The soup also chases away colds, flu, and the blues. Give to family, friends, and shut-ins.

SOUTHWESTERN VEGETABLE RICE

1 cup uncooked rice

⅔ cup chopped fresh tomato
½ cup chopped onion

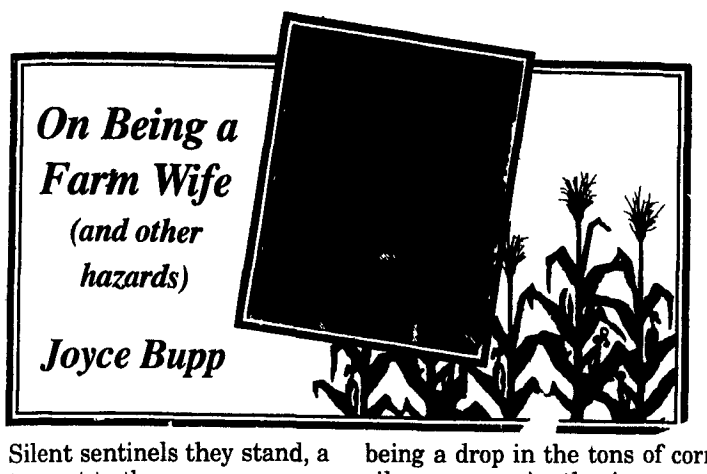
1 teaspoon chili powder
1 teaspoon ground cumin
¼ teaspoon red pepper

Combine broth, rice, green pepper, tomato, onion, butter, chili powder, cumin, and red pepper in 2- to 3-quart saucepan. Bring to a boil stir once or twice. Reduce heat; cover and simmer 15 minutes or until rice is tender and liquid is absorbed. Fluff with fork. Makes 6 servings



Silent sentinels they stand, a testament to the season.

Leaves of these cornstalks are still erect, though browning from the tips and ragged from the relentless beating of the wind which moved in with delightful cooler weather. A lonely row, these stalks are the sole remnants of what was once a lush stand of the summer's corn crop, tall and green and thick. Often a refuge for the cats, especially house-porch visitor and loner Midnight, the stand of corn, like so many before it, has passed into history.

Wide at the center, narrowing to points on each edge, the field just across the road from our farmhouse office door is somewhat of a "what's left," uneven-cornered plot not fitting into the neat pattern of contoured strips which wrap around the rolling hill. Because it is fairly small and irregular, the corner field offered an ideal section for trial-running the corn planter this spring, close to the shop and tools needed to make adjustments. And, since the test-trial field was planted early, it also was the first chopped to test-run the forage harvester on the silage corn.

Only this single row of stalks from that early field, standing too near the edge of the roadbank for the silage harvester to cut without courting an equipment rollover, remains in this strip just steps from to the house. They stand brave and defiant, albeit lonely-looking, battling the breezes sweeping down the backdrop of fields now barren of former corn kinfolk. Fate alone extended the stalks' lifespan, the closeness to the roadbank sparing them from being a drop in the tons of corn silage curing in the in-ground bunk silo, a blessed, stockpile of feed giving off a richly-fermenting smell.

I wonder sometimes, if our neighbors suspect we are fermenting something other than cow feed? (We aren't.)

The cows love this new corn silage, especially since our short supply after last year's drought ran out months ago. So they dig into their mixed rations with renewed gusto, relishing the plentiful kernels of yellow grain in the salad-mix of alfalfa and grasses and high-protein concentrates, laced with vitamins and minerals.

And around the farm, the coming of fall is obvious in other ways than the fragrance of fermenting corn.

Stands of goldenrod, with thick, fluffy tops, turn forgotten corners and fencerows a warm yellowish shade of fading summer. Milkweed pods are beginning to dry down, soon to split and spill out their innards of silky white threads, each attached to its own diminutive brown-parachute seed to float off in the wind.

Heavy clusters of deep purple pokeberries have mostly disappeared, relished by the backyard birds which then dispense the staining residue on anything within range, including laundry left hanging out to dry. In defense against the purple poke splatterings, anything relatively good in the garment line goes in the dryer rather than flap in the breeze. It doesn't much matter for barn clothes, which shortly after donning will be liberally laced with manure anyway. A couple of additional purple patches just add color.

The cloying, oppressive humidity that cloaked much of the late summer has been banished by the return of September's refreshing and welcome breezes. With the disappearance of the excessive moisture in the air which makes us feel sticky and uncomfortable, the sky's brilliant blueness has also returned.

That clear, deep Montana-sky blue provides a dramatic backdrop to the ever-changing pattern of clouds. I love to watch clouds, especially the puffy-fluffy kind that look like you could bounce on them from one to one, and the rolling, boiling ones that pile sky-high, their whiteness tinged with the last pink rays of sunset. The crispness of late September just enhances the beauty of the ongoing cloud parade.

As fall has her way with our straggly row of lonely corn stalks outside the window, the fading green will give way crisp brown. In an amazing maneuver of nature, each ear will turn upside down from its former upright, growing position, so that in maturity, the sturdy husk will shed off rain and snow to prolong the life of each kernel until another annual cycle is ready to begin.

But, the ears on that lonely row don't remain for another year. Their proximity will save me the effort of finding a field where the harvest equipment knocked corn over to salvage the ears in a personal annual rite of harvest for winter feed.

Squirrels have to eat too you know.

What A Way To See The World

ORWIGSBURG (Schuylkill Co.) — Have you ever wondered how things are done differently in other parts of the world?

To many people, finding out first hand would be a dream come true. For Melissa Moll, it is the opportunity of a lifetime. She recently left for Australia to learn, first hand, about farming "Down Under."

"I will be living and working on a farm for seven months. Even though I live and work on a farm at home, this will be a great learning experience," Melissa said.

The International Agricultural Exchange Association (IAEA) made this trip possible. IAEA is a non-profit organization that provides opportunities for young people, between the ages of 18 and 30, to learn about agriculture in other parts of the world. With placements in about 20 countries, trainees can choose from programs ranging from four to 13 months in agriculture, horticulture, home management, or mixed programs.

These programs offer more than just agricultural experience. The trainees also experience different ways of life and culture, as well as a better understanding of people from foreign countries. New friendships and memories are made that will last a lifetime.

"Being a 1998 graduate of Blue Mountain High School, this was a chance I couldn't pass up. I didn't feel I was quite ready to start college and I didn't know what exactly I wanted to do, Melissa said.

Agriculture has always been a large part of her life. She has been working on her father's dairy heifer farm since before she can remember. She has also been active in 4-H and FFA for many years. This past year she served as the Schuylkill County dairy princess and Schuylkill County FFA president.

For fairs and other shows she raised everything from dairy heifers and beef steers to sheep and goats.

Melissa wishes to further her education in agriculture and farming and hope to keep them a large part of my life.

"Everyone I have talked to about this program has said that they wish they would have had a chance like this when they were younger. Many people still do have this chance, don't pass it up," said Melissa. For more information about IAEA and programs contact them at IAEA, 1000 First Avenue South, Great Falls, MT 59401, Phone (406) 727-1999.

ANSWER — For the reader who wanted to know what to do to prevent cloudy jars when canning, Mrs. J. Kauffman, East Berlin, writes that she had the same problem until she discovered a solution by accident. One of her jars of pickled red beets broke while in the canner and Mrs. Kauffman noticed that all the other jars were clear, not cloudy. Since then she adds enough cider vinegar to cover the bottom of the canner before filling with water as usual for canning. Since she uses vinegar when processing jars in a water bath, she hasn't had trouble with cloudiness.

ANSWER — Toni Levan, Galeton, wanted a good recipe for garlic pickles. Thanks to Delphine Zimmerman, Newmanstown, for sending a recipe.

Sweet Garlic Dill Pickles

Wash and slice pickles ¼ -inch and pack into jar. Into each quart jar add:

½ teaspoon garlic powder or granules
½ teaspoon dill seed

Combine:

3 cups sugar
2 cups vinegar
2 cups water
2 tablespoons salt

Add syrup to pickles in jar. Put on lids. Set in canner, hot water bath and bring to a boil. Best if let set 2 weeks before using.

ANSWER — Ina Mikalauskas, Evans City, wanted recipes for tomato jelly, garlic jam, and pickled garlic. Thanks to Sue McKinsey, Windsor; Mrs. Seibert, Fredericksburg; and others for sending recipes.

Garlic Jelly

½ cup finely chopped garlic
3 cups white wine vinegar
2 3-ounce pouches liquid pectin OR 2 boxes dry pectin
Food coloring optional
2 cups water
6 cups sugar

In a 2½ -quart pan, combine garlic and vinegar. Simmer gently, uncovered, over medium heat for 15 minutes. Remove from heat and pour into a one-quart glass jar; cover and let stand at room temperature for 24-36 hours.

Pour flavored vinegar through a wire strainer into a bowl, pressing garlic with the back of a spoon to squeeze out as much liquid as possible, discard residue. Measure liquid and add more white wine vinegar if needed to make 2 cups.

To use liquid pectin: In a 5-6-quart kettle, combine flavored vinegar, water, and sugar. Bring to a full, rolling boil over medium high heat. Stir in pectin and bring to a boil that cannot be stirred down. Boil, stirring constantly, for one minute.

To use dry pectin: In a 5-6-quart kettle, combine flavored vinegar, water, and pectin. Bring to a full, rolling boil over medium high heat; then stir in sugar, stirring constantly. Bring to a boil that cannot be stirred down and boil 2 minutes.

If desired, stir in 2 drops red, yellow or orange food coloring. Skim off foam, spoon into hot ½ -pint jars. Top with lids and bands.

Place jars on a rack in a canning kettle and cover with boiling water. Bring to simmering and simmer for 10 minutes. Lift jars from canner and set on folded towels to cool. Before storing, test for a good seal. Refrigerate any jars that did not seal. Makes 7½ -pint jars.

Garlic Jelly-Cream Cheese Appetizer

8-ounces cream cheese
Garlic jelly
Unsalted crackers

Place cream cheese on a small board or plate.

Generously spread garlic jelly on top and allow to run down sides. Accompany with crackers and spreading knife. Serves 8.

Sue McKinsey writes that she has made this and it is delicious. If you like garlic you will love it and it you don't like garlic, you might like this anyway. It is similar to green pepper jelly that is served over cream cheese.

COACHING THE OVERWEIGHT CHILD

Research has shown that the nutrition of today's children is actually better than it was 25 years ago—it's our lifestyles that have changed. With the combination of computers and increased selection on television channels, more time is spent on these sedentary activities. Many conscientious parents and teachers have set out to encourage children to participate in sports, and, as we look at the enrollment in scholastic sports, we have been successful. Dealing with overweight participants, however, requires adults to be sensitive and to use good common sense.

Coaches and parents need to use restraint on how much the encourage an overweight child to participate. A child sitting on the sideline because he or she cannot keep up with teammates negates our efforts to increase physical activity, plus isolates and discourages the child. Rather, we need to focus on gradually increasing activity with emphasis on skill building first and fitness level second.

Here are some tips for coaches when working with overweight kids:

• Focus on gradual increases in activity and skill building instead of increased fitness level

• Do not single out the overweight child by asking him or her to run extra laps or exercise longer than other children in hopes of losing weight more quickly.

• Avoid referring to a child as obese, chubby, or fat

• Never restrict or withhold fluids for any child, especially the overweight child who is at a higher risk for heat disorders than the average-weight child

• Be patient with weight- and physical activity-related expectations.

• Help teach children to feel good about themselves regardless of talent, body size, or shape.

Special tips for parents include:

• Work with a health professional who has experience with weight control and young athletes to develop a medically sound and nutritionally balanced plan for your child.

• Do not single out the obese child by serving "special" foods or imposing restrictions. Include the whole family in making healthier food choices.

• Encourage the child to eat slowly and to enjoy whatever he or she eats.

• Never give food as a reward or withhold it as a punishment.

• Do not tell a child that he or she is on a "diet" and that certain foods are "good" and others are "bad."

How many times have you heard people say they were "bad" because they ate a high-fat and/or high-sugar food? Murder and stealing are commonly considered "bad" acts and are certainly not equal to enjoying a piece of chocolate cake. Instead, teach children that all foods are "good" foods. There are foods such as fruits and vegetables that need to be eaten daily, and there are other foods that should be eaten occasionally. "Special-occasion foods" is a term used by many nutritionists.

• Involve the child in food shopping, meal planning, and preparation.

• Never discuss the child's weight in front of others.

• Have family members participate in lifestyle activities with the child Fall activities include raking leaves, taking a walk and enjoying the autumn fragrances, and picking apples in an orchard.

• Discourage any family member from eating meals and snacks while watching television.

• Make sure there is a wide selection of healthy foods available Keeping cupboards of high-fat and high-sugar foods is only sabotaging efforts to improve eating habits.

• Finally, be a good role model Eat a variety of healthy foods, and include physical activity in your daily schedule.

Keeping Milk In The News

SYRACUSE, N.Y. — Presenting news editors with timely, creative ways to use milk helps generate stories in newspapers and on television — sending consumers to their local dairy case to purchase those items! To kick off the summer season, the American Dairy Association and Dairy Council, Inc. (ADADC), created a publicity kit that featured some of the more unusual ways to use milk — as documented in sources from contemporary medical literature to ancient folk remedies.

For example, did you know that milk can help ease the pain of a sunburn? "Chicken Soup & Other Folk Remedies," suggests filling a quart jar with equal parts milk and ice, and two tablespoons of salt. Soak a washcloth in the mixture and apply to the affected area for 15 minutes. Reapply three or four times throughout the day. Or, if the sunburn is on your face, try applying a masque of sour cream or yogurt for 20 minutes, then rinse thoroughly. Not only will you get relief from the heat, but your pores will appear smaller and tighter as well!

Accompanied by this eye-catching photograph, ADADC's publicity kit detailing unusual uses for milk and dairy products generated publicity throughout the marketing area.

What A River!

Did you know there are 54 different species of fish in the Chicago River? Along with the fish, mallards herons wood ducks, muskrats and beavers call the river home, too

The Chicago River itself is just one part of the Chicago River System which is more than 130 miles long

In the 1800s Lake Michigan was a source of drinking water for the city However, with the waste put in the Chicago River by industries located along its banks, heavy rains would push polluted water into the lake The polluted water led to deaths and disease so they constructed an underground tunnel to take water from further out in the lake When the pollution problem returned, the flow of the river was reversed in 1900 so sewage and other waste would no longer harm the drinking water

Most of the fish population is made up of carp and goldfish There are also bullheads, darters, minnows, sunfish, bass, and even trout and salmon that come in from Lake Michigan

Each year, 52,000 commercial, recreational and passenger boats pass through the river However, the river is probably most noticeable one day each year That's because a pipe fitters union dyes the river green for St Patrick's Day

Can you name 10 items that have been pulled from the Chicago River? These are just some of the things that have been found during river cleanup days

- A 500-pound safe
- A car
- A kitchen sink
- A water heater
- An outhouse
- Golf carts and balls
- Motorcycles
- Picnic tables

Why do gerbils burrow into their bedding?

The furry pets some teachers keep in their classrooms and you might have at home are originally from the dry, desert wilds of Africa and Asia.

Although there are more than 100 different species of gerbils, the popular pet is from Mongolia, a country on the border of Russia and China. This gerbil made its way to the United States only 40-some years ago, by way of a New York doctor who used the gerbils to study medicine. Most of the pet gerbils in the United States today are direct descendants of this doctor's first few pairs of animals

Gerbils are popular pets because they are clean, and they don't smell as much as other species of rodents, like mice (Yes, gerbils belong to the rodent family) Part of that is because gerbils' kidneys produce very concentrated urine With this benefit, gerbils don't lose much water when they go to the bathroom — a definite plus in the dry, arid desert Their feces are dry for the same reason

Wild gerbils burrow deep underground tunnels to escape the extreme desert heat and to hide from hungry predators. In the evening, they come out to search for food like seeds, leaves, roots, flowers and insects Pet gerbils don't really need to dig tunnels in their safe, comfortable cages — but they just can't shake that natural instinct to dig!

Hans Herr House Holds Snitz Fest

WILLOW STREET (Lancaster Co.) — The Hans Herr House will hold its annual Snitz Fest on Saturday, October 3, from 10 a.m. until 3 p.m This harvest time event celebrates the apple and its part in everyday Lancaster County history.

Apples constituted an important part of the early Pennsylvania settler's diets. At Snitz Fest, they take center stage, as visitors can see cider being made, snitz "cut and dried," and sample some 18th century apple recipes at the Herr House kitchen and outdoor bake oven.

A Conestoga wagon will tour the museum's orchard of antique apple varieties, and the apple tasting table gives visitors a chance to taste and compare some of these apples. Children's games and other harvesting activities such as threshing and cornshucking are also part of the day's events. Make sure and taste the sausages smoked over apple wood in the museum's 18th century smokehouse, and take home a snitz pie or a jar of fresh apple butter.

Admission to Snitz Fest is $5 for adults, $1 for children ages 7-12. Ages 6 and under are free. The Hans Herr House is located at 1849 Hans Herr Drive, Willow Street, PA, just 5 miles south of Lancaster, off Rts. US 222 and PA 741 between the villages of Willow Street and Lampeter. ANSWER — A reader wanted information on keeping a pair of swans in their pond in order to keep a Canada goose population under control. Thanks to Kim Bechtel, York Springs, for sending information. She writes that mute swans are easiest and more hardy than others. Make sure their wings are clipped. When the Bechtels purchased their first pair, the man told her they were clipped but the swans disappeared.

Swans must have water all year long. They need it to swallow food. So in winter, you must have an area open for the swans to get water for drinking and bathing. Kim's husband has an air compressor hooked to a timer with a pipe in water with holes all over to keep water moving. The area is large enough for swimming and to get to the feeder.

Swans eat wild game bird pellets. Food must be non-medicated.

In May or April, swans usually have about six eggs, very large and gray colored. Swans can get nasty during mating and laying time. They must be pinioned when two days because it is then a bloodless operation and the birds are easier to catch. You may need to fight off the parents.

Make sure swans are fed or they'll walk away.

Kim writes that swans are definitely a plus to any pond. They are gorgeous. She has a feeder on the edge of the pond that she fills every other day. During winter, she also feeds them shredded lettuce. Kim recommends the book "Swan Breeding and Management," by Laeyl Stromberg.

ANSWER — Henry Stoltzfus, Christiana, wanted a flashlight to crank to recharge or a Russian-made continuous pump flashlight. Thanks to a reader who writes the flashlights can be ordered from Major Surplus & Survival, 435 W. Alondra Blvd., Gardena, CA 90248.

ANSWER — Pat Elligson, Millers, Md., wanted to know where to purchase a square metal cake pan 8x8x2-inches that comes with a matching lid. Donald Love, Somerset, writes that cake pans of all sizes with lids can be purchased and mailordered from Cake & Kandy Emporium, East Petersburg, PA 17520-1624 or call 1-800-577-5728.

ANSWER — Anna Nolt, Peach Bottom, wanted to know how to control red spider mite in flowers. Thanks to Catherine Goubeaux, Strasburg, who recommends "Rodale's Organic Gardening." Red spider mites like dry contiditons and usually become a problem in dry years. Spray the plantw with Rotenine or insecticidal soap three times, once every five to seven days.

ANSWER — As a girl in the 1920s, Lenna Martin's grandmother sang at the Welsh Mountain church. She is now 83 and wanted the words to the song "The Orphans." Thanks to both Arlene Zimmerman, Ephrata, and Naomi Morrison, White Hall, Md., for sending the words.

The Orphans

Two little orphans a boy and a girl,
Sat by an old church door.
The girl's little feet were as brown as the curls,
That fell to the dress that she wore.
The boy's coat was ragged and hatless his head,
A tear shone in each little eye.
Why don't you go home to your mama? I said,
And this was the maiden's reply.

Chorus:
Mama's in heaven, they took her away,
Left Jimmy and I alone.
We came here to stay at the close of the day,
For we have no mama or home.

Daddy was lost out in sea long ago,
We waited all night on the shore.
For he was the life-saving captain you know,
But he never came back anymore.
Then Mama got sick, angels took her away,
She said, to a home warm and bright.
They are coming sometime for my darlings, she said,
Perhaps they are coming tonight.

Maybe tonight there's no room there, she said,
For two little ones to keep.
And placing her arms around little Jim's head,
She kissed him and both fell asleep.
The man came early to ring the church bell
And found them beneath the snow white
The angels made room for the orphans to dwell
In heaven with Mama that night.

ANSWER — R. Himmelberger, 129 Poplar Rd., Fleetwood, PA 19522, wanted poems with the word thimble in them. Thanks to Melva Wright, Newville, for sending a poem that she composed.

Thimbles

Some folks have many thimbles
They're a collector's item you see
But we only have a few—one, two, or three.
One is very tiny—it was a sewing kit
When I was a little girl—it was given to me.
Another is larger—silver-colored you see
It was mother's; she kept it nice as could be.
The third one is somewhat dark-colored and bent too.
I guess Grandma used it harder than we knew.
Auntie used to say:
"Put on a thimble, you must, if a good seamstress you want to be."
And the home ec teacher said the same thing
But somehow, those instructions never appealed to me.
When patching overalls I'd push and punch, and sometimes use pliars to pull the needle through.
Yet, I'd still keep in mind what I ought to do.
In our sewing box, we count our three thimbles
Articles of fine art but if someone comes to buy them, we'll say,
"With these thimbles, we'll never part."

ANSWER — For the reader who wanted to know what to do to prevent cloudy jars when canning, Mrs. J. Kauffman, East Berlin, writes that she had the same problem until she discovered a solution by accident. One of her jars of pickled red beets broke while in the canner and Mrs. Kauffman noticed that all the other jars were clear, not cloudy. Since then she adds enough cider vinegar to cover the bottom of the canner before filling with water as usual for canning. Since she uses vinegar when processing jars in a water bath, she hasn't had trouble with cloudiness.

ANSWER — For Joelle Fisher who wanted to know who to remove scratches from marble, Catherine Goubeaux, Strasburg, suggests she contact a marble company in Lancaster, Banta Tile and Marble Co., Inc. (717) 393-3931. They answer questions about restoring and repairing marble.

Supreme champion ewe in both open and junior shows went to a homebred Southdown shown by Jennifer Flinchbaugh. The grand champion Southdown ram was also named Supreme in the Junior show. Travis Flory helps hold the supreme champions.

Hundreds At York Fair Compete In Open, Junior Sheep Shows

LOU ANN GOOD
Lancaster Farming Staff

YORK (York Co.) — At the York Fair this week, things kept getting better and better for 17-year-old Jennifer Flinchbaugh during the two-day sheep competition.

First she showed the supreme champion ram and ewe in Southdown competition in the Junior Show against 117 entries. The following day the ram and ewe were proclaimed Southdown champions in the Open Show against 167 entries. On Monday evening, the champion Southdown ewe competed against champions in all other breeds for the Supreme Breeding Sheep title.

"It's more difficult to pick a supreme champion ewe than a ram because there are a number of great contenders," said Les Wagner, judge of the event. But for the most correct and stylish, Wagner said he would go with the Southdown ewe.

"She is homebred," Jennifer proudly repeated over and over. Championships run in the bloodlines. The ewe's mother was the reserve champion at the National Show held in Louisville and the ewe was sired by a ram that was a grand champion twice at Keystone International Livestock Exposition and at the Pennsylvania Farm Show.

Jennifer also showed the reserve grand champion market lamb and won showmanship in her age division.

The Flinchbaugh family has been breeding Southdown for the last 12 years. Because her dad had raised sheep during his teen years, he drew from a wealth of knowledge into putting together an outstanding flock at the family's Walnut Lane Farms in York.

Dorset

In the Open Breeding Sheep Division, John Eaton Junior's Dorset ram was named Supreme Champion Breeding Sheep over all other breeds, Judge Lee Wagner selected the Dorset ram for its frame size, correctness, and stylishness.

Since 1982, Eaton has been raising sheep. He now has 25 Dorsets and 25 Cheviots on his Windsor farm.

Eaton has had three previous supreme championships at York Fair. "I'm real selective on breeding," said Eaton, who works for People's Bank.

Cheviot

In the Cheviot competition, Eaton swept all the major awards in the Open show. In the Junior Cheviot competition, Tony Haugh of Red Lion swept all major awards. Tony is the son of Denny and Irene Haugh. Although it was only the second year he showed at York Fair, championships are common. Tony showed previous champions at Keystone International Livestock Exposition, and the State Farm Show.

Dorset

Although Eaton captured the open show competition, Junior Show exhibitor Matthew Banker showed the grand champion ewe and reserve ram in the Dorset competition. He and his dad Brian raise 35 head at their Hanover Farm. Matthew received the Rookie of the Year award as a first-year member of 4-H.

The grand champion Cheviot Ram and ewe are shown by Tony Haugh and his dad Denny of Red Lion.

In the Junior Show, Paul Kitzmiller showed the grand champion Dorset ram and ewe. Paul also showed the champion Montadale ewe.

It is Paul's last year of showing since he began pre-vet studies at Delaware Valley College recently. His mother Thelma plans to care for the 30 head at Wooly Breezes until Paul becomes a veterinarian and can again take charge of the flock. Paul is also the state star farmer.

Hampshire

Jay Rishel showed the champion Hampshire ewe in the Junior division and the champion Hampshire ram in both Junior and Open shows. His family operates RJR Hampshires at Seven Valleys.

The reserve champion ram was shown by Matt Trostle and the reserve champion ewe by Carrie Beth Ness of Felton.

(Turn to Page B16)

Standing in for his brother Matthew is Andy Bankert, who shows the champion Dorset ewe with his dad Brian Bankert of Hanover.

Emily Bankert with the help of her dad shows the grand champion Corriedale ram and ewe, which won in the natural-colored division.

SEASON-EXTENDERS

With colder nights approaching, season-extending devices and temporary covers may help in the garden. Colder temperatures especially at night tend to slow down plant growth. Cauliflower, celery, chinese cabbage, leaks, lettuce, onions, parsley, and peas prefer daytime air temperatures from 45° to 75° F, while beets, broccoli, cabbage, kohlrabi, radish, spinach and swiss chard prefer colder daytime temperatures down to 40°F.

A portable cold frame, also called a chache makes an excellent season extender. Gardeners use everything including cardboard boxes, double glass frames, blankets, and paper bags. Most are easy to use. For glass frame types, the soil is warmed along with the air inside. Other season extenders include recent inventions including tunnels, agricultural row covers, and black plastic.

For frost protection in a small garden, one-gallon glass jug, or bell jar works well to cover individual plants. Most temporary covers are removed in the morning unless well ventilated. A plastic 2-liter soft drink bottle make an inexpensive cloche. Cut off the bottom, punch ventilation hoes using a nail in the sides and lower into the soil two to three inches. Plastic milk jugs also work with the bottom cut out. Tomato cages covered in plastic with the top open works well for some plants.

Polyethylene tunnels can extend the growing season 30 to 60 days. Tunnels permit harvesting later in the season. The term row covers or agricultural fleece describes one of several lightweight fabrics used by farmers. These light, easy to use covers rest on the soil and the plant. Made of spun-bonded polyester, row covers allow sunlight and water to penetrate the soil while cutting down on plant damage from wind.

Fortunately, row covers only protect against close to freezing temperatures. Tender crops are protected one to two degrees below freezing for an hour or so using a row cover. A double layer provides more frost protection. Row covers have a useful life of three to four years. After removing them from the field, gardeners can soak in water, rinse and hang on a clothesline to dry for next spring.

Two to four weeks past the first light frost the season has passed for many vegetable crops. Carrots and cabbage thrive even with a light frost. Spinach and peas also tolerate mild frosts.

Any questions regarding the above article can be addressed to Tom Becker, Penn State Cooperative Extension at (717) 840-7408.

Zerpheys Receive Premium Wool Award

HALIFAX (Dauphin Co.) — Sheepberry Farms received a Premium Wood Producer Award from Mid-States Wool Growers Association. This award was for wool grown by John & Lynn Zerphey's 200+ sheep during the 1997-98 wool growing season.

Wool is one of the four basic products of sheep production, wool, lanolin, lamb for breeding stock, and lamb for consumption. The Zerpheys raise sheep to market to all four areas of sheep production, but take special care of their wool as many fleeces are shown at fairs and sold to fiber artists or craftspeople. Clean, healthy wool is a reflection of a healthy, productive sheep flock. The Zerpheys work very hard to maintain their flock in the best health and safe, stress-free conditions. "A happy, contented sheep is a productive sheep" said shepherd John Zerphey.

To prepare their wool for the mill or selling to craftspeople, the process begins at shearing. A professional sheep shearer is employed along with seasoned sheep handlers to bring the sheep to the shearing area. The Zerphey's use professional shearer, Peter Brummer of Millerstown, who received Champion Shearers Awards at the 1997 and 1998 State Farm Show Sheep-to-Shawl Contests. Brummer is aware the value of wool and shears with few second cuts (short pieces of wool) and leaving the fleece whole.

The sheep is sheared in a clean area and the fleece is then skirted to remove wool that may be coarse or soiled. Usually in skirting a fleece the belly wool and fibers at the back end of the sheep are removed and bagged separately The fleeces are then classed as to their grade, fine, medium, or coarse, and natural or black wool; then each is bagged separately

The Zerpheys are experienced at wool classing and grading, since Lynn Zerphey is a Level II Wool Classer, certified by the American Industry. To receive a Level II certificate, Lynn had to class 100,000 pounds of wool with a certified Wool Classer in the American Sheep Industry. To gain experience in wool classing, Zerphey traveled to Kansas and Ohio to large wool warehouses to class wool, and also worked at various wool pools in Pennsylvania to meet her 100,000 pounds of wool.

"As a hand spinner and sheep grower, I felt I needed to have knowledge about wool," said Lynn Zerphey, "as people would come to our farm to buy wool and ask about the quality and grade. As a producer I need to supply my customers with accurate information."

The Zerphey show their wool at a variety of shows and fairs throughout the state and even out of state, receiving many awards.

"The ribbons and our satisfied customer reinforce that we are doing good job in our sheep and wool production" says Lynn Zerphey.

The award from Mid-States Wool, located in Columbus, Ohio, is the "frosting on the cake" for Sheepberry Farms' wool. "When a large co-operative like Mid-States likes your wool," said Lynn Zerphey, "I feel we are being rewarded for all our hard work, since quality wool will command a better selling price."

ANSWER — Louise Newton, Cochranville, wanted a recipe to make funnel cakes. Thanks to Debra Allgyer, Womelsdorf, for sending a recipe.

Funnel Cakes or Plowlines

1 egg
⅔ cup milk
1⅓ cup flour
1 tablespoon and 1 teaspoon sugar
⅛ teaspoon salt
⅔ teaspoon baking powder
Heat oil in electric frying pan set at 375 degrees. Beat egg; add milk and sugar. Sift flour, salt, and baking powder; add to egg mixture. Beat batter until smooth. Fill funnel with the mixture and guide the amount coming out of the funnel with your forefinger. Move the funnel around to make an interesting design in the oil. Fry until golden brown; turn and remove from oil. Dust with powdered sugar. Eat while warm.

DAYCO SUPER II V-BELTS

Now there's a belt that beats the toughest drive problems.

Many heavy-duty industrial machines demand more than conventional wrapped v-belts can stand. Their punishing drives make ordinary belts crack under pressure. The result: unnecessary and expensive downtime.

Now there's a solution to the consistent costly problem of replacing or retensioning belts. It's the revolutionary new Super II™ v-belt from Dayco. The Super II belt was designed specifically for the most brutal applications. And its performance blows the cover off conventional wrapped belts.

In heavy torque, high horsepower and extreme shock load comparisons, it's not even a contest. The Super II v-belt is stronger, more flexible, and lasts far longer.

Innovative design & construction provide extra strength and stamina

The secret to the Super II v-belt's durability is its unique construction. The central position of the polyester cords in the neoprene rubber core provides greater strength, balance and longer life. Multiple fabric plies, top and bottom, enhance flexibility. And Dayco's unique raw-edged construction gives it a better grip for controlled slippage.

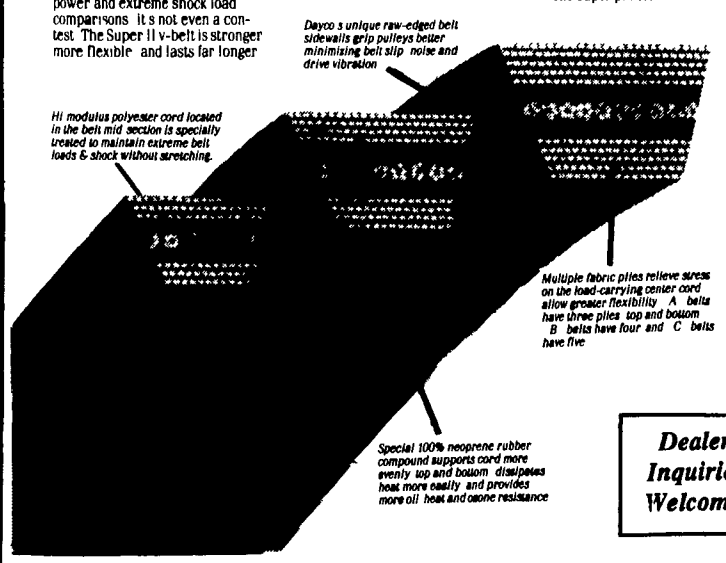
These attributes combined make the Super II belt superior to conventional wrapped belts in every way.

Test the Super II v-belt on your toughest drive

The Super II v-belt was field tested for two years on the most severe applications: rock quarry shaker screens, lumber mill tree debarkers, and pipe descalers. In every case, it outperformed conventional wrapped belts by a wide margin. But the only test that really counts is the one you do on your own equipment.

Try the Super II belt on your toughest drive problem. You'll be so amazed by its incredible endurance that you'll want to put it on all your drives. In fact, we're so sure you'll be pleased with the performance of the Super II v-belt that, in the unlikely event you're not satisfied, we'll refund the original purchase price, or replace it with a conventional wrapped v-belt.

The Super II v-belt from Dayco. The super problem solver.



Dayco's unique raw-edged belt sidewalls grip pulleys better minimizing belt slip, noise and drive vibration
Hi modulus polyester cord located in the belt mid section is specially treated to maintain extreme belt loads & shock without stretching.
Multiple fabric plies relieve stress on the load-carrying center cord allow greater flexibility. A belts have three plies top and bottom. B belts have four and C belts have five
Special 100% neoprene rubber compound supports cord more evenly, top and bottom, dissipates heat more easily and provides more oil, heat and ozone resistance

ROASTED CHICKEN LEGS WITH GOLD

4 large chicken legs (approximately 2½ pounds)
2 tablespoon extra virgin olive oil
Coarse (kosher) salt
Freshly ground pepper
½ teaspoon sweet paprika
5 tablespoons fresh lemon juice, divided
8 large garlic cloves, sliced thinly lengthwise
2 tablespoons chopped fresh dill
6 cups cooked rice
Preheat oven to 400 degrees with rack placed near top of oven.
Wash and dry legs. If desired, trim some of the fat but not all.
Rub legs all over with olive oil. Season on both sides with about 2 teaspoons of salt, about 1 teaspoon fresh pepper, and the paprika. In a large roasting pan, arrange legs, leaving ½ inch of space around each. Drizzle with 2 teaspoons lemon juice. Place pan on op rack and roast 30 minutes (20 minutes if legs are small).
Stir the garlic into the oil in the pan. Roast an additional 10 minutes or until legs are tender and the garlic is beginning to brown (do not let garlic burn — remove with slotted spoon if it's getting too dark, reserve). Remove pan from oven. Place rice on warm serving platter, arranging a thicker portion around edge.
Transfer legs to platter. Leave garlic and juices in pan (if garlic was removed, add it back in pan). Add remaining 3 tablespoons lemon juice to pan and, with wooden spoon, scrape up all the little brown bits that have stuck to the bottom of the pan. Taste the drippings and, if you like, season with salt and pepper.
Using fattier legs may require the addition of more lemon juice or olive oil for additional flavor. Pour drippings over the roasted legs. Sprinkle legs with fresh dill. Serve immediately.

Groundbreaking Set For Ohio Center

LONDON, Ohio — A new building at the Molly Caren Agricultural Center will help make the site of the Farm Science Review even more of a place for year-round education.

The new Natural Resources Interpretive Center at the Gwynne Conservation Area has been designed for educational displays and classes. A large front porch will overlook a pond, and the back deck will have a view of Deer Creek.

A groundbreaking ceremony for the log cabin building will take place the afternoon of Sept. 22, the first day of the 1998 Review. Gov. George Voinovich and new Ohio State University President William E. Kirwan are scheduled to be on hand for the event.

Visitors to the 1998 Review can watch construction of the well and septic systems.

The building represents a collaborative effort between Ohio State and the Ohio Department of Natural Resources. Funded through state bond Nature Works dollars, ODNR will own the building for 15 years, at which time it will become Ohio State property. Ohio State will maintain the building.

"Our goal is for students to have a facility where they can come for outdoor education. They can access the stream for water quality studies, they can look at the wetlands, it can be an observation setting for wildlife," said Larry Vance, chief of the division of Soil and Water Conservation at ODNR.

The $225,000 building will be 62 feet by 50 feet, including the porch and deck, or 50 feet by 40 feet inside.

CHEESE-STUFFED CHICKEN ROLLS

3 tablespoons dried tomatoes
4 skinless boneless chicken breast halves
2 tablespoons all-purpose flour
¼ teaspoon salt
⅛ teaspoon pepper
⅓ cup fine dry breadcrumbs
2 tablespoons grated Parmesan cheese
½ teaspoon paprika
1 egg
4 ounces cheddar cheese
1 teaspoon dried fine herbs
1 tablespoon butter, melted

In small bowl, place dried tomatoes. Add enough boiling water to cover; soak for 10 minutes. Drain and pat dry with paper towels. Finely chop and set aside.

Rinse chicken; pat dry between paper towels. Place each breast half between two pieces of plastic wrap. Working from the center to the edges, pound lightly with the flat side of a meat mallet to 1/8 inch thickness. Remove the plastic wrap.

In a small shallow bowl, combine the flour, salt, and pepper. In another small shallow bowl, combine the bread crumbs, Parmesan cheese, and paprika. In another small bowl, beat egg.

Cut Cheddar cheese into four 3 by 1/2 inch pieces. Place a cheese stick on each pounded chicken breast half. Sprinkle each with some of the chopped dried tomatoes and dried herbs. Fold in the sides of each chicken breast and roll up tightly. Roll in flour mixture, egg, and the bread crumb mixture.

Arrange chicken rolls, seam side down, in a two-quart baking dish. Drizzle chicken rolls with melted butter. Bake uncovered in a 350-degree oven for 20-30 minutes. Serves 4.

Transferring Farms Discussed At Ohio Review

LONDON, Ohio — A farm business transfer from one generation to the next doesn't have to be difficult, as long as everyone commits to work together and commits do it right, said Ohio State University Extension East District family and consumer science specialist Linda Ferris.

"It takes years to plan a successful transfer," Ferris said. "It's a time-consuming process, and there's no one easy answer for how to complete a successful transfer. It all depends on the individual situation."

When beginning the farm transfer process, farm families need to consider whether they have an economically viable business to transfer, if there are enough assets and income to provide for the older generation's retirement needs, how they can happily work together to help make the transfer a success, what should be transferred to the next generation and when should it be transferred, and how they can avoid paying unnecessary income, gift and estate taxes.

Ferris, East District farm management specialist David Miller, and other Ohio State University Extension district and state farm management specialists will answer questions about farm business transfers throughout the Farm Science Review, Sept. 22-24, at the Farm Business Transfer Office inside the McCormick Building.

The purpose of a farm business transfer is getting the farm business and assets transferred from one generation to the next in a timely manner. The most important thing is having a plan, Ferris said.

Common methods of transferring property are by installment or outright sale, gift, lease, buy/sell arrangement or inheritance. Which method is best for a farm depends on the age of both generations, retirement plans, the size of the operation, business goals and other factors that vary from farm to farm.

"That's why we decided to have specialists on site to talk with people and answer questions about transfers individually throughout the Review," Ferris said. "It allows for more individual communication and advice on steps people need to take to complete a successful transfer on a farm-by-farm basis."

There will be displays with farm business transfer information in the office, so people also can find the answers they need by reading, she said. One display will be on "Farm Assets and Long Term Care," with specialists discussing Medicaid and Long Term Care Insurance as it affects farm families.

"We've always gotten a lot of questions about transferring farm businesses to the next generation," Ferris said. "That's why we consider it an important enough topic to have someone on hand every hour the Review is open for people to visit at their convenience and get advice."

The Farm Science Review is sponosred by Ohio State's College of Food, Agricultural, and Environmental Sciences and takes place Sept. 22-24 at the Molly Caren Agricultural Center near London, Ohio. Tickets are $4 in advance and $6 at the gate and can be purchased from agribusinesses and county offices of Ohio State University Extension. Children 12 and younger get free admission.

Maryland DHIA

The August Dairy Herd Improvement information for dairy herds from the DHI processing center in Provo, Utah. The list includes herds from Maryland, Pennsylvania, and West Virginia. The information is listed by herd name, county association, number of cows in the herd and the average production per cow in the herd based on Energy Corrected Milk (ECM). ECM combines milk production and components.

The ECM formula is: (7.2 x lbs. protein) + (12.95 x lbs. fat) + (.327 x lbs. milk). To be included, the herd must have 10 cows averaging 65 pounds or more of ECM per cow, per day. All herds reported are on official DHI or DHIR test. Also listed are the top ten herds in Maryland for the Brown Swiss, Guernseys, and Jerseys, and the top seven herds for Ayrshires.

4-Year-Old Tops Maryland State Fair Holstein Show

KAREN BUTLER
Maryland Correspondent

TIMONIUM, Md. — A pair of 4-year-old Holsteins were named grand champion and reserve grand champion of the Holstein show held here at the Maryland state fairgrounds.

The breed show was held in the Cow Palace at the fairgrounds in conjunction with the 117th Maryland State Fair.

Judge for the show was Mr. Gary Culbertson, a Holstein breeder from Richfield, New York.

Hickory-Green Wauren Star, a 4-year-old Holstein owned and exhibited by Chris and Budgee Hill, and Paul Harrison III of Burkitsville, was the senior champion female in the show, and was named grand champion of the Holstein show.

"A beautiful cow," was how judge Culbertson described the 4-year-old, "with a beautiful udder and the quality of frame that we're trying to get."

Star was also named total performance winner and cow with the best udder in her 4-year-old class. As a 3-year-old, Star made over 30,500 pounds of milk, 1033, 3.8% fat, and 885, 2.9% protein.

Another 4-year-old, Dorcee Jack Sheba, gave the grand champion some stiff competition in the class, and was selected reserve senior champion female and reserve grand champion of the Holstein show by judge Culbertson. Owned and exhibited by Norman Voss Jr., Vossman Farm in Clayton, Delaware, Sheba was also recognized for having the second best udder in her class.

The senior champion females were selected from the classes of dry cows, the 4-, 5-, and 6-year-olds, and the 100,000-pound and over cows.

An intermediate champion and reserve intermediate champion were selected from among the 2- and 3-year-olds and the 17 3-year-old futurity entries.

Another entry belonging to Norman Voss Jr. was named intermediate champion. Lockway Chalet, the first place senior 3-year-old, rose to the top of the intermediate classes to be named intermediate champion. She also had he best udder in her class. Judge Culbertson said he liked the 3-year-old's beautiful udder and her exceptionally nice dairy head and neck.

A 2-year-old owned and exhibited by Kathy Whitman, Mechanicsville, was named reserve intermediate champion. Derrwyn Encore Ladel was the first place senior 2-year-old, and was named best udder in her class.

A junior champion and reserve junior champion were selected from heifer classes.

Their 5-year-old home-bred Peace and Plenty Justa Kaye, who was named first and best uddered of its age class, was honored as the best Maryland bred and owned animal of the show.

Three States Represented At Northeast District Jersey Show

CAROLYN N. MOYER
Bradford County Correspondent

TROY (Bradford Co.) — Jerseys from Pennsylvania, New York and New Jersey competed at the 1998 Northeast District Jersey Show held recently at the Troy Fairgrounds.

Normandale Farms, of Liberty, was named both the premier exhibitor and breeder of the show which judge Michael Heath, of Westminster, Md., said rivaled some top state shows in quality of animals shown.

"All these exhibitors deserve a round of applause," Heath noted. "The animals I've seen here today could compete in any state show and do well."

Both the grand champion and reserve grand champion of the show were selected from the 4-year-old class.

Tri Maple Imperial Dilila, owned by Heather Pease, of Susquehanna, was named the grand champion.

Reserve grand champion was Hillacres Pams Poppy, owned by Paul and Carolyn Moyer, of Roaring Branch.

The junior champion in the open division was Holmhurst Regal Cranberry Too, a fall yearling, owned by Ryan Sprout, of Montrose. The reserve junior champion was Bren-Delite Spice, the second place fall yearling, owned by Brenda Robson Hodder, of Mansfield.

In the youth division, Renee Norman, of Liberty, showed both the grand champion and reserve junior champion.

Renee's grand champion was Normandell Lester Charm, a senior 3-year-old, while Emily Norman's junior 2-year-old, Normandell Mister T Monika, was reserve grand champion.

The junior champion was a spring yearling, Eastmont Duster Daffy, shown by Tricia McIlwain, of Roaring Branch, and Christie Wilcox, of Covington.

Renee Norman's reserve junior champion was a spring yearling, Normandell Poseidon Gigi.

Also presented at the show was a premier performance award, based on dairy production and show class placing.

Receiving this distinction was a 9-year-old Jersey, Tin D Champ Dottie Donna, owned by Paul and Carolyn Moyer.

Blandford To Head Penn State Ag Econ/ Rural Sociology Department

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — Dr. David Blandford, head of the Trade and Markets Division of the Directorate for Food, Agriculture and Fisheries of the Organization for Economic Cooperation and Development (OECD), has been appointed head of the Department of Agricultural Economics and Rural Sociology in Penn State's College of Agricultural Sciences, effective July 15.

"Dr. Blandford's impressive scholarly background and extensive global perspective of agricultural sciences will be important assets to the department, our college and the university," said Dr. Robert D. Steele, dean of the college. "We are delighted that he has chosen to move to Penn State."

The OECD is an intergovernmental organization of 29 countries established to encourage stable market economics and pluralistic democracy, to achieve the highest sustainable economic growth in member countries and to improve the economic and social well-being of their populations. The OECD advises and makes national policy recommendations to its members; it also arbitrates negotiations of multilateral agreements and establishes legal codes in certain areas.

As head of the largest division within the OECD directorate, Blandford supervised the directorate's work on agricultural commodity issues and directed the formulation of its quantitative economic models. The Trade and Markets analyzes agricultural policy issues, including domestic agricultural policy, international trade, rural development and environmental issues. The division also is responsible for producing the OECD's annual "Agricultural Outlook" report, its biggest-selling agricultural publication.

Blandford's accomplishments include research in support of the 1987 Uruguay Round negotiations on agriculture (the final phase of the General Agreement on Tariff and Trade or GATT), and the presentation of workshops on agricultural marketing for "transitional" economies in Hungary and Poland. He has served as a consultant for the United Nations Development Program, the U.S. Agency for International Development and the U.S. Department of Agriculture.

Born in the United Kingdom, Blandford received his bachelor's degree in geography from Birmingham University in 1970. He received a master's degree in agricultural economics from Manchester University in 1972 and earned his doctorate from that institution in 1976.k

He worked at Manchester University and Salford University in the U.K. from 1971 to 1975, and at Cornell University from 1975 to 1990, rising to the rank of full professor. He was awarded the Kellogg Foundation International Fellowship in Food Systems in 1986-1989 and received the Quality of Communication Award from the American Association of Agricultural Economics in 1991.

Blandford's wife, Maureen, who is an educator, human-resource trainer and consultant; daughters, Ailsa, 19, and Alexis, 13; and son, Christian, 9 also will be moving to the State College area.

The Department of Agricultural Economics and Rural Sociology offers baccalaureate degrees in the agricultural business management and in environmental and renewable resource economics, as well as two-year associate degree in agricultural business. The department also offers master's and doctoral degrees in agricultural economics and in rural sociology. In addition, a Master of Agriculture degree is available in both disciplines.

ADVANCED MACHINERY SERVICE

"The people at Hoober's are always there for you. If you have a problem, they're willing to work hard to help you out. It doesn't matter if it's service or parts. When you call, they do everything they can to get you going as soon as possible."

Kenneth Smith

During harvest is never a good time for a combine breakdown. Unfortunately, Kenneth Smith had that very problem . . . stuck in a field twenty miles from home with a combine needing repair. Ken called Hoober, Inc. and a Hoober combine service specialist responded. In less than 90 minutes, Hoober had Ken's combine fixed and he was back harvesting.

That's Advanced Machinery Service!

BIG BLOWER: QUICKLY CENTER-FILLS TALL SILOS.

The NEW "F62B" moves mountains of material thanks to its 12-inch feed auger. The auger is positioned at a 30-degree angle to the eight-paddle blower fan so crop moves quickly and efficiently right into the blower.

The heart of the Model F62B is its 60-inch-diameter blower fan. With a paddle tip speed of 8,460 feet per minute, the "F62B' blows corn silage at a capacity of up to 180 tons per hour and haylage at a capacity of up to 110 tons per hour.

Even though the "F62B" has a large-diameter blower fan and high-speed paddles, it's the quietest New Holland blower ever. See the new F62B Blower today at BHM Farm Equipment.

HARVEST CORN NO MATTER THE ROW SPACING WITH NEW RU450 INDEPENDENT CORN HEAD

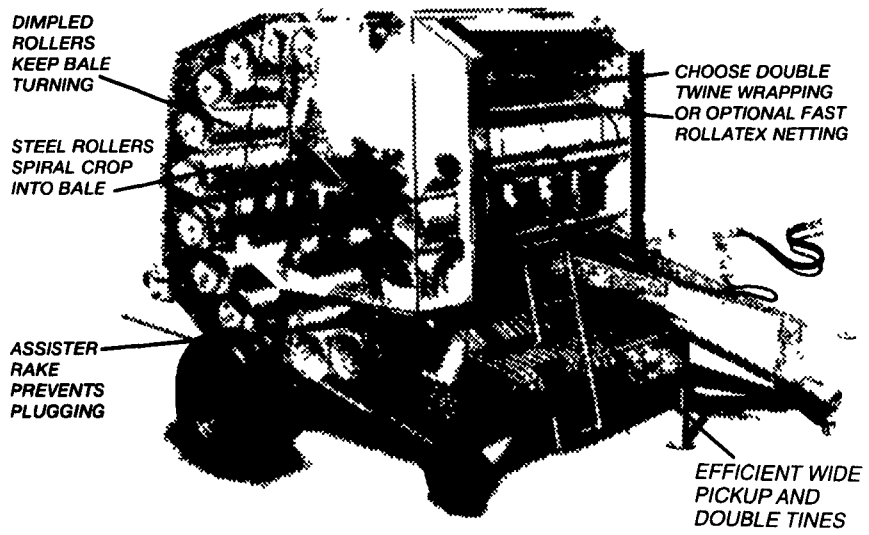
Claas of America offers the RU 450 row independent converging corn head for its self-propelled forage harvesters The RU 450 enables corn to be harvested no matter the row spacing or direction harvested and features a working width of 14'9".

The head features three rotating drums which cut and deliver the crop Double transport discs on each drum capture the corn plants for crop delivery. The mowing disc, located under the transport discs, cuts the crop and then delivers it to the feed augers The three-symmetrical rotors assure even crop flow to the feed rollers.

The chainless rotor drive system is made up of universal drive shafts and oil bath gearboxes Drives are protected by low maintenance overload clutches With fewer moving parts than a conventional corn head, the RU 450 requires less maintenance resulting in higher output Transport of the head is done by activating a hydraulic valve from the cab which folds the outer rotors into a vertical position

Owners say:

"Tight bales, fast, no trouble"



DIMPLED ROLLERS KEEP BALE TURNING
STEEL ROLLERS SPIRAL CROP INTO BALE
ASSISTER RAKE PREVENTS PLUGGING
CHOOSE DOUBLE TWINE WRAPPING OR OPTIONAL FAST ROLLATEX NETTING
EFFICIENT WIDE PICKUP AND DOUBLE TINES

Herbert Hoover Farney says, "I didn't think they could mix it."

Steve, Dale and Herbert Hoover Farney
Silvery Falls Farms - Lowville NY

Mr Farney is talking about mixing 11.5% long stem dry hay by ration weight in the Knight Reel Auggie 3450, which he and his sons decided to purchase in September of 1994.

Herbert was born the day Herbert Hoover was elected president.

The Farneys previously owned a three-auger Oswalt stationary unit. They state that the "old mixer tended to ball material up, especially in wetter forages, while the Reel Auggie 3450 'fluffs' the ration."

The Farney's herd average is up about 1,000 lbs., and they have a higher protein test as well. They milk 160 Holsteins, and feed a total of 260 head. They like the low power requirement — the 390 cubic foot machine is powered by a John Deere 2030 tractor.

Huntingdon County Fair Features Open, Youth Dairy Shows

GAIL STROCK
Mifflin Co. Correspondent

HUNTINGDON (Huntingdon Co.) — "I'm overwhelmed we did it again!" exclaimed Naomi Speer just minutes after her 9-year-old Holstein cow in the 125,000 Class won grand champion of its breed at the Huntingdon County Fair, held mid-August in Huntingdon.

My-Favorite Vanguard Kandi has been a favorite of judges at various Holstein shows over the past few years, winning the grand champion rosette again and again for Speerette Farms. Naomi said Kandi peaked in lactation in April and May at 154 pounds a day. Holstein judge Kress Simpson commended the amount of milk she is producing for her age.

In the rest of the Holstein Show, BRKN - Mirror Boutonnier Tara, an aged cow owned by Jim and Kim Grove and Bob Hamner, earned reserve grand champion honors. This 6-year-old won reserve All-Pennsylvania as a 4-year-old in 1996. Jim Grove's comments echoed what the judge had to say about the aged cow class in this show.

"It's been a good show," Jim said. "My guess is that the aged cow class has a type classification average of 92. A county show doesn't get any better than this.

Junior Holstein champion honors went to Nathan Couch's winter yearling, Lakevue Warner Spearmint, while Samantha Foster won reserve junior champion with her fall calf, Globe Run Milan Popcorn.

Verbeek chose Eugenia Harpster's aged cow as the Jersey grand champion and Joyce Harpster's 5-year-old for reserve grand champion. Gregory McMurtrie showed the junior champion while Harold and Shirley Harpster entered the reserve junior champion Jersey.

In the Ayrshire Show, Alan Brant showed his aged cow to win grand champion honors. Alan Brant had entered the other half of his show herd at the Fulton County Fair where he took grand and reserve champion. Huntingdon County's Dairy Princess Sara Hayden showed her aged cow to win reserve grand champion honors. Junior champion went to Chris Semple's fall Ayrshire calf while A. Carolyn Loucks won reserve junior champion with her fall yearling.

Seven animals were entered in the Brown Swiss show. Nicholas Burket won both grand and reserve grand champion. Abigail Mowrer won junior champion honors with her spring yearling.

In the Guernsey Show, Jan Snider showed a 4-year-old to win grand champion. Snider Homestead also took junior and reserve junior champion honors. Reserve grand champion went to Amber Clark and her junior 2-year-old.

Alan Roger Brant won grand champion in the Milking Shorthorn show with his 4-year-old while Douglas Hoover Jr., showed his 4-year-old to win reserve grand champion.

The youth show took place on Monday during the Huntingdon County Fair. The open animals entered the show ring the following day.

Transferring Farms Discussed At Ohio Review

LONDON, Ohio — Two supporters of agriculture and the Farm Science Review will be inducted into the Farm Science Review Hall of Fame. Harold Bauman and Ed Johnson are to be honored for their dedication to the success of the Review and agriculture.

Harold Bauman, assistant dean of fiscal affairs for the College of Food, Agricultural, and Environmental Sciences until 1988, provided guidance for the Review from 1966 until his retirement. He even "sat his butt in the tractor seat to help out," said Craig Fendrick, FSR manager.

Bauman said he has seen the Review change over the years, and said it has gone beyond chopping rows and toting bales. "The Farm Science Review is a well-run affair, Bauman said. "You have to feel proud about them, they make their own way. If they want to spend a buck, they have to make a buck."

Ed Johnson's work with the Agri Broadcasting Network (ABN) has earned him national recognition. He has been broadcasting from the Farm Science Review for 30 years, and has "qualified as the greatest promoter of the Farm Science Review, and is the Review's number one fan," according to Fendrick. "With his promotion of the Review, Ed has opened to us an avenue we never thought possible."

As president of ABN, Johnson hosts a syndicated radio program, produces a television show, "Agri Country," and publishes "Ohio's Country Journal," a monthly agricultural magazine.

In all his years of broadcasting, Johnson has never missed a day of the Review. "It (the Review) is the showcase of Ohio's agriculture. It allows farmers to see the latest research, technology and farm machinery all in one location."

Bauman and Johnson have been top supporters of the Review; whether it's sitting in the seat during the planting of the plots or promoting it for 30 years on the radio. For their important contributions to making the Farm Science Review what it is today. Bauman and Johnson will join the ranks of past inductees: Jim Caldwell, Naurine McCormick, Francille Firebaugh, Robert Miller, Jim Utzinger, David R. Miskell, Robert L. Eby, C.L. "Lep" Lephart, Dorothy R. Friday, Paul C. Leidheiser, Thomas M. Stockdale, Ted L. Jones, William L. George, Earl W. McMunn, Roland L. Leeper, James W. Yingling, William B. Zipf, Wilbur A Gould, Shirley A. Brooks-Jones, Marion E. Grimes, Molly Caren Fisher, Novice G. Fawcett, Dale T. Friday, Roy M. Kottman and Thomas F. Wonderling.

The Farm Science Review is sponsored by Ohio State's College of Food, Agricultural, and Environmental Sciences and takes place Sept. 22-24 at the Molly Caren Agricultural Center near London, Ohio. Tickets are $4 in advance and $6 at the gate and can be purchased from agribusinesses and county offices of OSU Extension. Children 12 and younger are admitted free. Hours are 8 a.m. to 5 p.m., Sept. 22-23 and 8 a.m. to 4 p.m., Sept. 24.

Pennsylvania Receives $1.4 Million For Farmland Preservation

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Pennsylvania will receive $1.4 million to purchase development rights and preserve over 3,300 acres of valuable and vulnerable farmland in 15 counties through the USDA Natural Resource; Conservation Service (NRCS) Farmland Protection Program, according to Janet Oertly, NRCS state conservationist.

Funds will be awarded to the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture three county agricultural land preservation boards, and one township, as a result of previously submitted proposals.

Federal monies are to be combined with $4.4 million in state and local funds through existing protection programs to acquire conservation easements to limit the use of prime farmland.

"It is important to protect Pennsylvania's prime farmland, her scenic beauty and her open space," said Oertly. "We are proud to promote a program which does that and supports a farmers way of life," she added.

"Much of America's farmland is near major cities," said U.S. Secretary of Agriculture Dan Glickman. "And as our cities continue to grow into neighboring rural areas, our farms are in danger of becoming subdivisions and shopping malls. We can't sit back and take our best farms — and the food they supply for our families — for granted."

The Farmland Protection Program was established by the 1996 Farm Bill and designed to protect the Nation's best farmland. USDA provides up to 50 percent of the cost of purchasing the easements, while landowners agree not to develop their land for nonagricultural purposes.

The program was funded for six years with $35 million. All of those funds have now been obligated. Pennsylvania received a total of $3.27 million or approximately 10 percent of the total program funds.

Two First-Timers At Bedford Fair Sale

LINDA WILLIAMS
Bedford Co. Correspondent

BEDFORD (Bedford Co.) — It was the year for firsts at the Bedford County Fair Junior Livestock sale.

Wanting to be represented, the dairy industry put together a market basket full of cheeses, butter, coupons for ice cream, a dairy industry T-shirt, snack crackers, and numerous other donated items. They never expected the closing bid of $1,725 paid by Bedford County emergency room doctor, Mark Finder.

Parading their wares in a 100-pound basket, a representative of the dairy committee and dairy maid, Cindy Mearkle, as well as Jan Snider and his supreme champion Guernsey cow were on hand for the auction.

With a plea to the audience, Commissioner Dick Rice noted that 265 farms in Bedford County maintain 119,000 dairy animals valued at $43.8 million. The cows generate more than $37 million in dairy goods annually.

Bidding started at less than $100 and quickly rose to the $1,000 mark with William Campbell attempting to outbid the physician.

At one point, auction helper, Scott Myers, got down in the sawdust on his knees, pleading with Finder to keep bidding. Myers even offered to "take off my shirt, if necessary."

After a tremendous round of grateful applause, Finder took the mike. "I was a city boy," he said. "I never appreciated how hard farmers work until I came to Bedford County. I attend this sale every year and buy to repay my appreciation."

Finder purchased a number of lambs, hogs, and hog lots. He has the meat processed and gives much of it as Christmas gifts. He intends to share his dairy basket with his co-workers.

Also new this year was a meat goat auction. Melilssa Shastay could not stop smiling as her grand champion 65-pound goat brought $17 a pound. It was purchased by Bedford Valley Petroleum represented by Linda Redman, who gave the animal back to Melissa.

Reserve champion owned by Molly Blackburn was bought by Travis Group Farm Machinery for $6 a pound.

The remaining 11 goats went as follows: Brittany Pepple's sold to Bedford Hotel Tavern for $1.10 a pound; Andy Corle's was bought by Roy Kegg for $1.10 per pound; Zachary Corle's for $1.10 per pound by Dr. Finder; Josh Powell's, $1.05 per pound by Joe Spiker; Tanner Waltemire's, $3.20 per pound to his grandmother Myersview Farm; Jonathon T. May, to T.P. Goats for $2.90 a pound; Eli Blackburn to Elizabeth and Thomas Coyle of Johnstown for $2.40 a pound; Spring Truax sold her goat at $1.70 per pound to Bill Jordan; Jefferson Powell's, $1.30 per pound to Bedford Agway; Christina Winesickle's, $1.40 per pound to Straightway Decks owned by Joe Spiker; Cody Waltemire's sold for $4.20 per pound to Myersview, again for his grandmother, Ada Myers.

The auctioneer told the buyers goat meat is very strong on the East Coast and it was a good time to get in on the ground floor.

Roundup Ready Corn Weed Control Plots Planted

DEKALB, Ill. — The debut of Dekalb brand Roundup Ready® corn allows more than 10,000 growers to do something they've never done before — apply Roundup Ultra™ over the top of their corn.

And what's happening now in corn fields all across the United States has growers and researchers looking closely at this new product.

While the traditional chemical application window has slammed shut on many growers across the Corn Belt, Roundup Ready corn customers have been able to maximize the benefits of this new product. Early indications show that Roundup Ready corn weed control systems are more effective than traditional programs.

In many parts of the country, unfavorable weather conditions early this spring have had a toll on conventional herbicide systems. In dry areas of the Corn Belt, preemergence herbicides have allowed weed escapes. While in other areas, good growing conditions combined with frequent early season rainfall have prevented timely applications of several postemergence herbicides.

"These contrasting weather conditions have not been a concern with Roundup Ready corn," said Tracy Klingaman, Dekalb's agronomic trait manager. "The new Roundup Ready corn system is not affected by these weather conditions and is showing strong performance throughout the Corn Belt. Crop safety also is an advantage as Roundup Ready corn is showing little to no stress when compared to other corn that was subjected to ALS and growth regulator herbicides."

Roundup Ready technology allows growers to combine the elite germplasm of Dekalb hybrids with the weed conotrol flexibility of Roundup Ultra, which controls more than 100 grasses and broadleaf weeds.

"We're proud to be the first and only seed company to offer Roundup Ready corn, and we compliment all growers who quickly adopted the new technology," said Vernon Benes, Dekalb central marketing manager for corn products. "We also look forward to seeing the results at harvest time. Early field plots show Dekalb brand Roundup Ready corn is quick to germinate and is outgrowing competitive hybrids of similar maturities. That should mean big yields this fall."

Benes says Dekalb anticipates releasing an additional five to seven hybrids in 1999, making the total Roundup Ready hybrid selection almost a dozen. These products will range in relative maturity from 95 to 115 days. A top priority will be an expansion of hybrid choices in the southern Corn Belt.

Perennial Ryegrass Booklet Available

OGDENSBURG, NJ — Perennial Ryegrass (lolium perenne) is the highest quality forage grass available today. In many respects it outperforms other grasses.

It is a cool season grass and therefore produces most in the spring and fall. During hot (greater than 90 degree) and dry periods it will go dormant, but will continue to produce as soon as temperature drops again.

People have been trying perennial ryegrass in the past, but the varieties being used were not adapted to the climate of the Midwest and Northeast. Some varieties were brought over from New Zealand and other varieties were developed in areas with hardly any killing frosts.

Besides that, farmers didn't know how to manage and fertilize Perennial Ryegrass to make it persist. The combination of the above left a lot of farms frustrated, they knew the quality of Perennial Ryegrass, but didn't know how to grow it.

Barenbrug USA and Modern Forage Systems have been importing genetically improved varieties from [continental] Europe. Those imported varieties proved to be winterhardy and farmers have been successful with letting those varieties to persist. Also universities in Wisconsin and New York have seen that those varieties live through their winters.

Barenbrug thinks now is the time to make farmers aware of the possibilities with these improved varieties. Therefore they have composed a booklet that tells how to grow and manage Perennial Ryegrass in the Midwest and Northeast. The booklet contains articles of experts, but also contains the story of nine farmers who have been successful with growing Perennial Ryegrass for several years.

The booklet is called "The Secret of Their Success" and is available free for farmers and associates. People can order up to three copies by calling Barenbrug at (800) 547-4101

Company Enters Marketing Agreement

TUNKHANNOCK (Wyoming Co.) — PR Pharmaceuticals Inc., Fort Collins, Colo., announces a sales and marketing agreement with Sire Power, Inc. Tunkhannock.

Sire Power, celebrating 60 years of leadership in the artificial insemination industry, has a direct presence in the nation's dairy market.

Sire Power will market the full line of EfferCept products to the dairy industry. Products include EfferCept Vet, a new technology in mastitis control, the SoftGuard series of conditioning additives, as well as other supporting products

EfferCept Vet is a safe highly effective teat dip and spray in an easy-to-use, easy-to-store tablet form. These convenient, concentrated effervescent tablets dissolve quickly in water to give exact strength every time. The active ingredient in EfferCept Vet, hypochlorous acid, offers 100 times the bacteria killing power of bleach, but is far more gentle to the teats and udder, and the hands of the milker. Unlike bleach, which is neutralized quickly in organic matter typically found in dairy environments, EfferCept Vet maintains killing power as an effective mastitis preventative. More than a quarter of a million dairy cows from every region of the country have been effectively treated with the product under real farm conditions

SoftGuard Additives are specifically formulated to provide a moisturizing/conditioning agent for teats when using EfferCept Vet solutions SoftGuard Aqua-Blue Additive provides a color indicator for visual inspection of proper teat dipping or spraying procedures, in addition to moisturizing and conditioning the teats.

The EfferCept Vet and Sire Power marketing agreement will serve dairy customers by enhancing localized support and service, while accelerating market awareness of this new product introduction.

NOTICE:

To all customers of Ben Zook/Vintage Blacksmith –

Some of you may have heard that we are moving out of the Lancaster Co area. This is true. My family and I will be relocating to Greenburr Gap Road in Greenburr, PA. It's in the Sugar Valley area of Clinton Co

One of my greatest concerns was to find someone who would continue to provide the same kind of service that you have become accustomed to. He would need to be friendly (especially since the farrier is blamed for everything!)☺ teachable, and experienced.

Please welcome Daniel Stoltzfus from Leola. He is highly recommended by the veterinarian as well as myself, for regular and corrective shoeing. Daniel will be working side-by-side with me for 1 year beginning this October 1, at the same Mine Road, Kinzers address. At the end of one year, he will then become the owner of Vintage Blacksmith On behalf of my wife, Barbie and I, we want to thank our customers for being one of the dearest blessings to us this past 6 years

Please continue to call us for appointments at 717/422-8676.

Logan, the third generation, worked here all his life and in 1991 started to lease everything from his father. In 1997 an outright sale was made between father and son and now Logan is the sole proprietor. He milks 141 cows that average 21,526m 786f 669p.

But the production was not always this high. When he started to feed Purina feeds in 1997, the herd average was only 18,327m 672f 590p on 20 less cows.

"Neighbors who feed Purina got me started on their calf raising program six or seven years ago," Logan said. "I was impressed with the results. The feeding program I was on for the cows was not very aggressive. I felt I needed to get more from the feed. So because of what Purina feeds had done with my young stock, I went their way with all my feed needs."

Logan wanted a company that had service, backed their feed with research and had a representative that knew the dairy business.

"Purina has the financial backing, research capabilities, and the service that I want," Logan said. "With Purina, I get more feed into the cows but my cost is less.

Logan uses freestalls and a milking parlor to accommodate his herd. He has feed and water available everywhere the cows happen to be, even out in pasture. Computers play an important management role in the operation with all management records, accounting, inventory and even current invoices from Purina available.

"We know what our feed cost is," Logan said. "We figure the value of our farm-grown hay and silage every month. The dairy division of this operation actually supports the agronomy part of the farm. In just one year's time with Purina, I saw a decrease in feed cost and an increase in milk production with the same amount of feed.

"I'm a one program man. There needs to be a smooth transition from heifers to dry cows to the milking herd. With Purina you can do this.

"Yes, I recommend Purina to other dairy farmers who are considering a new feeding program," Logan said. "But don't fool around with an economy mix. Go right to the top of the line feed. I lost ground by trying to be economical. The higher cost feed actually costs less per hundred of milk produced."

Pleasant View Farm nestled in the valley near Blain in Perry is the home of Logan Bower, third generation to farm the 500 acre dairy farm.
